Approximately 130 Great Lakes steamers loaded with iron ore and other vital defense industry cargoes were forced to tie up near the canal while workmen feverishly worked to clear the wreckage. Engineers predicted the task would require four days. (Story on Page 11.)

10 Dead, 20 Missing As Storm Rips South Georgia, Florida; Property Damage Widespread

Germans Flank Donets Basin, Berlin Claims

Violent Battle Rages at Center as Ports on Azov Fall.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Germans appeared to be beating slowly forward last night along the far approaches to Moscow in perhaps the most decisive battle of the eastern campaign, and claimed as well that the Donets river basin in the Ukraine had been outflanked by a long advance which also menaced the equally important industrial arsenal of the Don valley.

While Moscow was speaking of the Nazi thrust at the center as Hitler's supreme offensive, Berlin implied that it was but one and not the greater one of two coordinated grand smashes.

German accounts, in fact, stressed this second all-out thrust, that of the far south.

Rostov Approached.

There it was claimed that the southern Nazi armies, having won a major battle above the sea of Azov with the capture of the staff of the ninth Soviet army, had raced on to the east to occupy the ports of Ossiipenko (former Berdyansk) and Mariupol, the latter two-thirds of the way across the northern shore of the Azov toward the vital Don River port of Rostov and 125 miles east of the Dnieper river.

All this, the Germans asserted, left the Donets basin "virtually indefensible" and Rostov itself and the valley of the Don generally open to imminent attack. Mariupol is but 100 miles to the west of Rostov.

The general picture drawn by military dispatches from the central front was of a Red line pierced here and there over an immense area by small Nazi salients against which Soviet troops were smashing in violent attacks spread over many miles.

Grave Threat Admitted.

In its communique early this morning the Soviet command for the first time stated the exact areas of this heavy German pincers action, reporting particularly heavy fighting in the region of Vyazma, 150 miles west of Moscow, and Bryansk, on the Desna river some 200 miles to the southwest. The towns are about 140 miles apart.

The Soviet leadership plainly implied to the people that here in the theater before Moscow the gravest hour of the German invasion had fallen.

"The enemy," said the official organ of the Russian armies, "has gathered all he has got to break through. We must answer by a crushing blow. At any price destroy German tanks, planes, guns and manpower."

ACTRESS WEDS COLLEGE SWEETHEART—Giving her right name and getting the license in Los Angeles, Jean Fitzgerald, 21, film actress, married Ernest Manfred Speedy Jr. in near-by Glendale last week, it was revealed yesterday. The romance started when they were students at the University of Iowa. The new husband is employed in an aircraft plant on the west coast.

State Troopers Dispatched Into Stricken Areas

Atlanta Probably Will Not Get Any Rain.

Many sections of Georgia last night felt the ravages of the tropical hurricane which traveled northward through the center of Florida, entering Georgia in the southwest section.

The storm, originating in the Bahamas, claimed the lives of 10 people, with 20 others missing in Florida, while reports from southwest Georgia estimated property damages at several hundred thousand dollars. Falling trees crippled power lines, throwing several south Georgia cities into darkness.

Headed Towards Augusta.

Late last night Weather Bureau officials reported the storm had headed in a northeasterly direction, and was traveling slowly in the direction of Augusta. The wind, blowing at a rate of 100 miles per hour when the hurricane struck Florida just south of Miami late Sunday, had diminished to 45 miles per hour when the storm reached Georgia, Weather Bureau officials said.

No damage was reported in Augusta last night.

At midday an eight-mile-an-hour wind was blowing in Atlanta in a northwesterly direction, but Weather Bureau officials expected it to shift by daybreak and head eastward.

Officials of the bureau expressed doubt that Atlanta would get any rain as a result of the storm.

Keeps Up Record.

In Tallahassee, Fla., the Tallahassee Daily Democrat kept up its publishing record, despite the fact that Tallahassee was entirely without electric power. Yesterday's paper was published on mimeograph machines, and delivered to the homes. It consisted of eight pages on paper 8 1/2 by 14 inches, and carried several advertisements.

Tampa, Fla., last night was a haven for a flock of Army planes transferred from the air base at Savannah, Ga., to be stored in hurricane-proof hangars larger than football fields. The hangars sheltered 125 bombers and 60 Army planes from the Savannah base. Those known to be dead were a Georgia school girl, five men reported to have drowned at Panama, a fishing village on the Gulf of Mexico, south of Tallahassee, and three persons in the Bahamas. Another, a Panacea fisherman, was reported to have died of a heart attack.

Damage Heavy in Cordele.

Editor H. H. Wind, of the Cairo Messenger, estimated the storm damage there at from $75,000 to $100,000. Mayor J. B. Chism said $30,000 to $50,000 damage was done at Pelham. Damage to the pecan crop, estimated by various grovers in the south Georgia section, ranged from 50 to 80 per cent.

Driven by a 65-mile wind, rain flooded low-lying sections at Cordele, reaching floor level in many houses. Plate glass windows were shattered and electric signs torn from their moorings. Trees fell across county-owned power lines, throwing the town into darkness. Damage was estimated unofficially at $200,000.

Cochran, Eastman and Hawkinsville reported high winds and heavy rains, but little property damage.

Arnall Flays Talmadge Tactics

Rules State Cannot Assume Monroe Debts.

In a bluntly worded statement, Attorney General Ellis Arnall announced yesterday that he would not allow Governor Talmadge and his appointees "to usurp the prerogatives" granted to him by law and the state constitution.

The youthful attorney general declared in an open letter to his assistants in the law department that "it would not seem improper" for them to resign if they felt they should take directions from the Governor instead of him.

Assistants Approve Deal.

Arnall had just ruled that the State Board of Education could not legally assume the indebtedness of David I. (Red) Barron's school at Monroe, when he let go his blast at two assistant attorneys general.

Arnall's blast came after Assistant Attorneys General Lint S. Johnson and Andrew Tuten submitted their ruling to the chief executive in which they said the state board could acquire the property of Georgia Vocational and Trades School but could not pay off any of its debts. The Governor had ignored Arnall in asking for the opinion, but Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, at the request of a special committee, called on the attorney general for a ruling.

Head of Department.

At the same time that he released his opinion to Dr. Collins, Arnall wrote a letter to his assistants, most of whom were appointed by the Governor, and virtually asked them to resign if they felt they should take their directions from the Governor's office.

"Should an assistant feel that he does not owe to the attorney general the duty of discussing legal matters with the head of the law department, but instead that he is to take his directions from the Governor, then it would not seem improper for him to resign."

Chairmanship Is Accepted By Arkwright

Committee To Study Police Situation Will Meet Tomorrow.

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Powers Company and chairman of the city's labor mediation board, yesterday accepted chairmanship of a five-man committee established by council Monday in an effort to break an impasse between council factions.

Immediately after agreeing to serve, Arkwright called the first meeting of the committee for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the city hall, and all persons having some direct and concrete plan for settling the differences between the council factions and Police Chief Hornsby and the police committee were invited to appear.

Other members of the compromise committee are Aldermen G. Dan Bridges and L. O. Moseley, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the police committee; Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, and Councilman J. Allen Couch, staunch advocate of the ordinance to give Hornsby complete charge of the police department.

U. S. Oil Men Complete Exodus From Rumania

ISTANBUL, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The withdrawal of American oil interests from Rumania was completed today when the last six executives and technicians arrived here.

Only one American oil man remained behind, Walter Small, a technician, who chose to stay in Rumania.

Peace To Be Critical As War, Welles Says

Final Defeat of Hitlerism Is Prime Objective of U. S., He Tells Foreign Trade Parley.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, declared tonight that the period following the war will be fully as critical for the nation as is the present crisis.

In a speech prepared for the 28th National Foreign Trade Convention and broadcast by CBS, he noted, however, that "for the people of this country the supreme objective of the present, before which every other consideration must give place, is the final and complete defeat of Hitlerism."

Welles shared speaking honors at the meeting with Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, and read to the delegates a message from President Roosevelt.

"The very difficulties created by war conditions for an orderly functioning of the trade process furnish striking evidence of the significance of international commerce for the economic life of nations," said Mr. Roosevelt's message.

"The rise in the world of ruthless forces of unbridled aggression have rendered the performance of our present vast task a paramount duty for all of us—for those of us who are primarily engaged in economic activity at home and for those of us who labor in the field of foreign commerce."

"We must make sure that no effort will be spared to place international commerce on a basis of fair dealing, equality of treatment, and mutual benefit. In no other way can it serve the function of promoting, rather than retarding, peaceful relations among nations and the economic well-being of all."

Peace Study Urged.

Welles told the delegates that he could conceive "of no greater misfortune than that the people of the United States and their government should refrain from devoting themselves to the study of reconstruction until the end of the war; that they should permit themselves to adopt the passive policy of 'wait and see.'"

Referring to the post-war period, Welles said: "There exists the danger, despite the clear lessons of the past, that the nations of the world will once more be tempted to resort to the same misguided policies which have had such disastrous consequences, and in the economic field especially there is danger that special interests and pressure groups in this country and elsewhere will once again selfishly and blindly seek preferential treatment against others."

"And the preservation of our liberties—all-important in itself—is essential to the realization of the other great objectives of mankind—an enduring peace."

"There can be no peace in a Hitler-ridden world."

Lord Halifax told the delegates: "More—that is the keynote of the present conflict. More ships, more aeroplanes, more guns and more tanks."

"And more food to sustain the warriors and workers alike," he went on. "This is a total war and nothing less than the total energies of our minds and bodies will be needed in its waging."

Brother, Sister Victims of Polio, Are Fighting Back to Health

By DEAN BROOME.

Two Atlanta children in the same family, who contracted polio on the same day in the recent epidemic, are fighting their way back to health—and proving it can be done with a smile.

They are Charles Dickens Jr., 11, and his sister, Helen, 5, children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickens, of 3537 Gordon road.

Both turned up at home with the disease on September 6, have passed the crisis, and on the road to recovery with spirits undampened.

Helen is already running and playing a short time each day. She was only mildly afflicted, and shows hardly any ill effects. She spends her time entertaining her big brother and a dolly, "Sleepyhead," who, she insists, had the disease, too.

Charles, who must wear a plaster cast on his legs, finds the worst effect, he says, in the fact that he can't scratch. Once, too, he declares, a flea got under his cast, giving him no end of trouble.

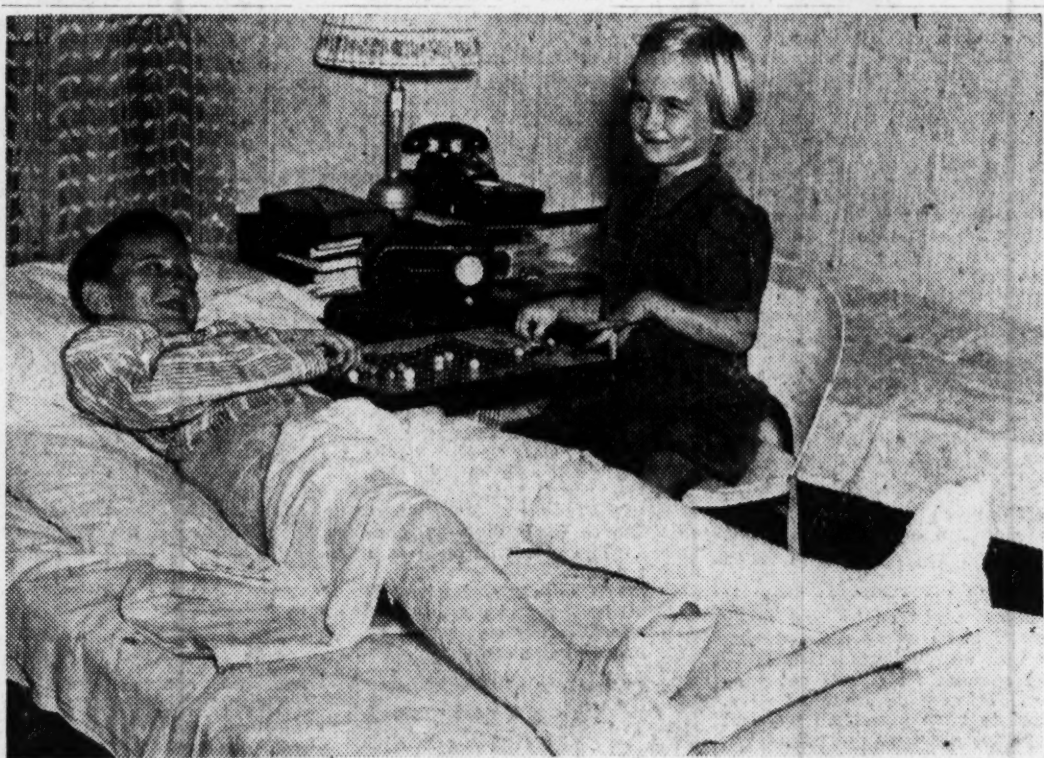

"Now I know what it's like to be a mummy," he adds.

Charles hopes to be out of bed in a few weeks. He is spending his hours in bed catching up on lessons, and will be promoted next June along with his fellow students in the sixth grade at Margaret Fain school.

One important worry in his life is waiting until next April 13, his birthday—and that, also, of Thomas Jefferson—when he hopes to become a Boy Scout.

Not the least of the courageous spirits in the Dickens family is the mother, Mrs. Helen M. Dickens, who underwent the doubly overwhelming siege of polio while holding down a job at the same time. She is assistant clerk at Fulton Drafts Bank.

Polio struck in her family on her 13th wedding anniversary.

Camp Stewart Boys Get Beer; Benning Lads Resume Dances

Army Operated Beer Garden Hits 'Jook' Joints.

The boys at Camp Stewart may drink beer in their own backyard now. Moving to save them from the influence of neighborhood "jook" joints, identified by the soldiers as "Boombtown" and "Zoomtown," the post officially opened a Camp Exchange Beer Garden.

All done up in red and white, the coast artillery colors, the establishment will regularly serve free lunch to the soldiers with beer.

Opening of the camp beer garden is a part of Major General Sanderford Jarnan's program to offer Camp Stewart's soldiers "a greater variety of diversion on the post" and a striking contrast "to certain undesirable beer establishments which have sprung up at entrances to the camp in recent months," Stewart press releases stated.

The beer garden cost approximately $1,500 and has a seating capacity of 100 persons with huge tables and benches carved from cypress logs taken from the reservation.

Vinson Introduces 2 Naval Measures

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Secretary Knox asked congress today for 400 patrol vessels, mine sweepers and other small warcraft to free units of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets which now are patrolling naval bases for more important functions.

Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the House Naval Committee, promptly introduced legislation authorizing the Navy to build or acquire the ships.

Vinson also introduced a bill authorizing a $295,077,000 expansion of naval base facilities. No breakdown by localities was given. Knox estimated the cost of obtaining the 400 craft would not exceed $300,000,000 and that not more than $15,000,000 would be spent this fiscal year.

New Italian War Issue Nets $1,064,000,000

ROME, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Vincenzo Azzolini, governor of the Bank of Italy, reported today that subscriptions to a new issue of nine-year treasury bonds to pay for Italy's share of the war had reached 20,216,000,000 lire ($1,064,000,000) at the nominal rate of exchange, compared with 15,272,000,000 lire ($803,000,000) subscribed last February.

Commissioners Revoke Order Closing Party in Church Hall.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 7.—Dances were resumed last night in the recreation hall of St. Patrick's Catholic church, in Phenix City, Ala., as the result of action taken yesterday morning by the city commissioners in revoking an order which closed the church hall to dances last week.

The dances, under supervision of Father James J. Salway, rector of the church, and five Fort Benning chaplains, was largely attended by soldiers from near-by Fort Benning and young ladies of Columbus and surrounding cities.

Commissioner A. L. Gullatt, who authorized closing of the dance last week, defended his action, stating he did so after residents in the vicinity of the church had complained of the noise.

"It's better to have a little wholesome noise," Major George A. Sossman, Fort Benning morale officer, told the commissioners, than it is to hear the explosion of an enemy bomb."

Cooler Weather Seen Today for Atlanta

The heat wave which has held Atlanta and the rest of the south for weeks is losing its grip, the Weather Bureau said yesterday.

Cloudy skies and a northeasterly breeze, whipped up by the Atlantic storm, sent the mercury down to 79 degrees yesterday and will keep it there today, the Weather Bureau forecast. The minimum recorded yesterday was 71 degrees and 64 is predicted for today.

Evidence Is Collected On Nazi Oppressors

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The British government announced today that it is collecting evidence regarding Germans who may be responsible for murder, oppression and cruelty to hostages and others in German-occupied territories. Richard K. Law, undersecretary of foreign affairs, told the house of commons that the government had the subject of punishment for such individuals under consideration and that the foreign office was discussing the matter with allied governments.

Neutrality Law Changes Necessary, Roosevelt Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told reporters today that new orders of the government of Panama forbidding the arming of ships flying that nation's flag made rapid revision of the American neutrality act more than ever urgent.

He made this statement at a press conference. Earlier in the day he was reported to have informed congressional leaders, mostly from the senate, that the act should be revised to let armed American ships carry supplies into British and other belligerent ports.

For two hours and a half Mr. Roosevelt and the legislators had discussed the ins and outs of the situation. One of the conferees said the prevalent opinion of the gathering was that Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations should be carried out, but there was disagreement on procedural matters.

A second meeting was scheduled for tomorrow and Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, predicted that a decision would be reached at that time.

The action of Panama was important because, to escape the neutrality act's restrictions, some American-owned ships have been transferred to Panamanian registry, armed and sent with cargoes to England. One of these, the Pink Star, was torpedoed and sunk recently.

Asked for comment on the development, the President told reporters that he supposed Panama was simply following the lead of the United States in forbidding its ships to be armed.

Meanwhile Secretary of Interior Ickes made an announcement that sinkings in the North Atlantic had "greatly diminished." As a result, he said, the British government believes it soon will be able to restore to American service temporarily, 10 or 15 of the United States tankers which were placed at her disposal.

At the White House conference too, Harry L. Hopkins, the lend-lease co-ordinator, was said to have reported that on the whole supplies were now reaching Britain safely. To this he added a statement that it was impossible to foresee what the situation in the future would be.

One of today's conferees, although not wishing to be quoted by name, said that most of those present were in agreement that present restrictions which forbid arming American cargo ships and bar them from both belligerent ports and designated combat areas should be removed.

Unsettled Questions. Procedural questions which remained unsettled, however, were: Should Mr. Roosevelt ask for the changes one at a time, or call for both of them in a single message to congress?

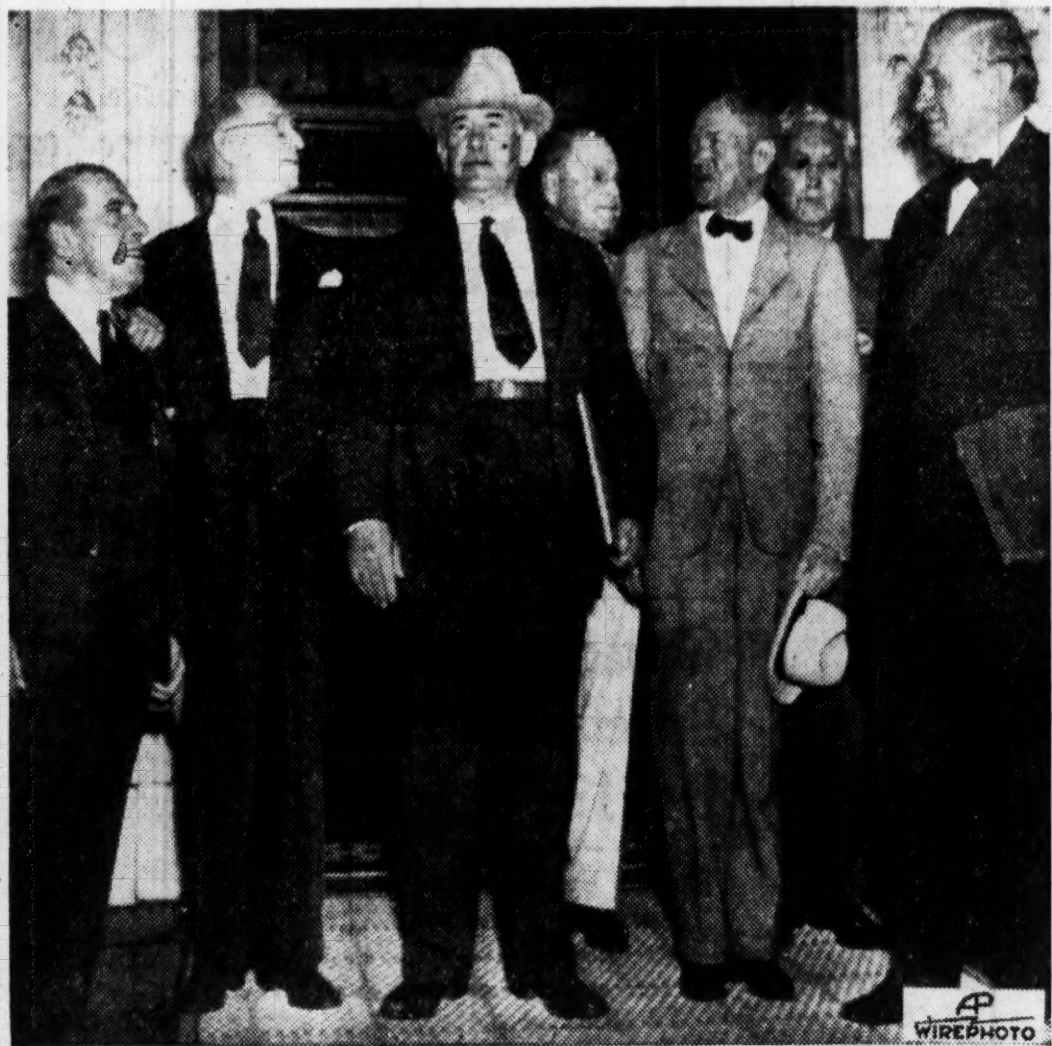

On both points rested several fine points of congressional strategy.

In the first place the administration vote on foreign policy is much stronger in the senate than in the house. Senate approval first, one argument ran, would send the legislation to the house with the prestige of a big vote of approval in the senate.

However, there has been talk of a filibuster among the senate's opponents of the Roosevelt policy. Should it develop, it could easily delay the enactment of the legislation for weeks or even postpone a vote indefinitely.

Senator George declined to comment, telling reporters he was not yet ready to state his position on neutrality revision.

STUDY NEUTRALITY—These seven leaders of both parties in the house and senate conferred for more than two and a half hours yesterday with President Roosevelt and administration leaders on modification of the neutrality law. Shown left to right are Representative Sol Bloom, Democrat, New York; Senator George, Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky; Senator Warren R. Austin, Republican, Vermont; Senator Charles L. McNary, Republican, Oregon; Representative Charles A. Eaton, Republican, New Jersey, and Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, Texas.

10 Are Dead As Storm Rips South Georgia

damage. Each city reported sign boards and limbs were blown down in many places.

At Macon there was about two inches of rainfall during the late afternoon and early last night. By 10 o'clock last night it had practically stopped raining. No property damage was reported there.

Power Lines Down. Fragmentary reports from Georgia Power Company troubleshooters indicated that the hardest hit section ranged from Albany southward. At 7:10 o'clock last night linemen were striving to restore service to Pelham, Meigs and Camilla, which were completely without electric power. At midnight the Flint River-Camilla line, which serves these three towns, was back in service.

Two 44,000-volt lines, Albany to Pelham and Tifton to Moultrie, were down. A 66,000-volt line between Tifton and Valdosta was out six hours. The 11,000-volt line between Americus and Tifton was down eight hours.

Meanwhile, Captain J. J. Elliott, of the State Highway Patrol, said he was rushing officers to Cairo and Albany to police streets, where store windows were destroyed by the storm, and to assist in establishing communications.

He said he had 30 men with field kitchens and supplies standing by ready to rush into any area where such assistance might be needed.

The state patrol's 245-foot radio tower at Albany was snapped off 75 feet above the ground and Elliott said he had to send a car equipped with a transmitter into the area to handle communications important in the transportation of soldiers to the state.

"The storm has done about all the damage its going to do," Meteorologist Mindling, of the Atlanta bureau, said last night. He predicted that it would head for the coast without further serious property damage or loss of life.

The only death reported in Georgia in the total of 10 computed in the storm's destructive path was that of 16-year-old Frances Hester, of Pavo, Ga., student at Norman Junior College at Norman Park. She was electrocuted when she tripped on a live wire blown down by the storm.

Belated reports from outlying islands of the Bahamas indicated that three persons were killed and several injured in the hurricane that lashed that area for two hours Sunday night. Five men were reported to have drowned at Panama, Gulf coast fishing village south of Tallahassee, Fla., when the storm-whipped tides trapped them in a seine-yard, and a sixth died of a heart attack.

Moving into Georgia, north of Tallahassee, the storm uprooted trees and cut power lines at Albany. The CAA bureau at Albany's airport reported a wind velocity of 64 miles an hour with gusts reaching 75. Thomasville was raked by high winds and torrential rains for more than three hours. Stately old oaks were uprooted and power lines were cut by falling trees. Operations at the Thomasville hospital were continued with the aid of storage batteries.

Little Girl, 5, Lost Eight Days In Cold and Rain, Never Cried

By FRED BRADY.

CONWAY, N. H., Oct. 7.—(AP)—A curly-haired New England tomboy—five-year-old Pamela Hollingworth—played happily in her hospital bed tonight with a big red fire truck.

She had been given the new title—Tomboy—by her father when she was returned to him alive after wandering eight days in the bitter cold through Mount Chocoma's wooded slopes.

Many townsfolk cried when they heard last night that Pamela had been found on a mountain trail. But the little girl who was not afraid to be lost hadn't a tear in her eyes.

Her father—Joseph Hollingworth, Lowell, Mass., lumber dealer—said of her:

"Pam never cried."

Father Rolls Truck. She was laughing tonight when her father rolled the red fire truck up and down her bed.

She laughed up at her father and her mother the way she did at the nurse when they first brought her to the hospital last night, bruised and her face dirty with pitch, after a ride down the mountain in her father's arms.

Tonight was the first opportunity the Hollingworths had to spend any length of time alone with their little girl. Pamela had been closely guarded in the hospital with only necessary visits from her nurses.

Hospital authorities were astounded at her condition but she showed her carefully after those eight days in the subfreezing weather and cold rain, clad only in overalls and sneakers.

Lungs Are Clear. Memorial Hospital surgeons said her lungs were clear and her tiny frost-bitten toes were responding to treatment and that she probably could go home in two or three days.

Hollingworth termed the reports "very encouraging," adding: "Her feet are not swollen the way they were last night."

Before Hollingworth went to see his daughter he rode again to the search headquarters where forest rangers, soldiers and CCC boys were breaking camp.

He went to thank them again for their help in the hunt which grew to one of the largest in New England with more than 1,000 volunteers tramping the wooded hills.

He told the searchers he slept well last night as he had made himself sleep every night during the long search because:

"I couldn't let myself get panicky. I knew I'd find her alive. I had to keep myself in physical shape to carry her down."

Returns to Hospital. Then, late this afternoon he started back to the little white hospital. He strode anxiously through the door and as anxiously returned—he'd forgotten to buy Pamela a present.

He strode down to the nearest toy shop, asked Mrs. Samuel G. Turner for a present for a little girl, and picked out a big, red, fire truck with a ladder that climbs when you turn a little crank.

Mrs. Turner stared in surprise at the type of present the man in the green corduroy trousers and the windbreaker picked out for a little girl.

But when she was wrapping, the man smiled at her and said: "She always was a tomboy. It's for Pam, my daughter, the little girl who was lost."

Soil Service Opens Training School

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROME, Ga., Oct. 7.—A school to train new workers to fill positions in Georgia, Florida and Alabama was started here Monday with 45 persons enrolling at the United States Soil Conservation Service began a 30-day training course.

C. L. Veatch, district conservationist, is in charge of the class. The course is the sixth to be held in the past two months in region No. 2 of the Soil Conservation Service.

J. V. Webb, area conservationist, pointed out that Rome was designated as a training center as the city is headquarters for conservation work in 34 northwest Georgia counties. The Rome area is also well qualified as an instruction center as the Coosa Soil Conservation district was the first in Georgia and one of the first in the country to begin operation. Before the district plan was put into operation, an area of 30,000 acres in Polk and Floyd counties was known as the Agate erosion preventive practices were put to use.

'White' Almost Ran Crew Down

Tanker Was Shelled as She Sank, Survivors Believe.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 7.—(AP)

How the blazing American-owned tanker I. C. White ran unharmed in wild circles after she was torpedoed, endangering the boats containing her survivors, was related tonight by her master, Captain William Mello, as rescue ships brought 34 of her crew of 37 to this harbor.

One and perhaps two submarines attacked the I. C. White without warning at midnight September 27, 600 miles from the Brazilian coast, the survivors related, and there was not even time to stop the engines as the crew, nearly all of them Americans, went over the side.

"The I. C. White kept headway for an hour and a half after we left her, swinging around in circles, afire, and several times we had to row like the devil to get out of the way," said Captain Mello, a 46-year-old resident of Chelsea, Mass.

Captain Mello and 16 other survivors were brought here by the rescue ship Del Norte; 17 others followed them aboard the S. S. West Niles this afternoon.

Savannah Man Rescued. Survivors aboard the Del Norte included Samuel A. Galamere, first assistant engineer, of Savannah, Ga.

Three men—Boatswain Joseph A. Yevic, of Boston; Seaman Frank Dobrosielski, of Bayonne, N. J., and Oiler William C. Rankin, of Norfolk, Va.—were lost when one torpedo struck the No. 7 tank and the oil blazed up, Captain Mello said.

"We had no time to waste," said Mello. "We launched the boats, tossed overboard a rubber jump for it. They jumped but we never saw them again."

The captain said he did not try to radio for help for fear that an SOS would attract other ships to the danger zone and also that the attacker would shell the I. C. White.

Shelled While Sinking. Some of the other survivors said they believed the I. C. White actually was shelled as she sank. Nine-year-old H. W. Ackerman, of Charleston, S. C., said he believed there may have been two submarines, although only one torpedo was fired.

"I was asleep when a torpedo hit square amidships," said the youth, who worked in the officers' mess. "So were most of the others, except nine who were playing poker in the crew's mess. But we got topside in less than five minutes and had two boats overside with 17 men in each in less than ten minutes."

Stood by Four Hours. "We stood off from the I. C. White for four hours until she went down by the stern, rowing around her, but we did not find the missing three."

The submarine dived immediately after the torpedo struck, Ackerman said, and "we saw two lights clearly. Some of the crew

One Killed, 8 Injured as Train Leaves Rails, Demolishes Depot

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 7.—(AP)

A speeding eastbound Grand Trunk & Western freight train left the main depot late this afternoon, killing at least one person and injuring eight others.

A force of 100 state police and railroad employees immediately began a search of the station ruins for others who might have been trapped in the twisted debris.

About 15 persons were known to have been in the depot when several boxcars, which had buckled, hurtled into the west end of the building.

Eyewitnesses said the engine and four boxcars of the train had crossed the South Washington avenue intersection near the downtown business section before the accident occurred.

Then the fifth, they said, rose up and those behind "cracked like a whip," derailing 30 cars which were strewn along the right-of-way. Those nearest the station were demolished.

One end of the depot was smashed as though it had been bombed and the railroad control tower at the street intersection was torn down.

Grover Hartley, tower signalman, said he saw the cars buckle and leaped to safety seconds before one crashed into the two-story structure.

The passenger agent, Leslie E. Buck, said he heard the crash and dropped to the floor just as the side of the station caved in.

One version of the accident was that a rail had divided near the depot. Another was that a wheel truck on one of the cars had broken.

First reports from two Lansing hospitals, to which scores of physicians had been summoned to care for the injured, indicated that few of those admitted were seriously injured.

The train was proceeding 15 minutes behind a passenger train east bound for Canada and was 15 minutes ahead of a Chicago-bound passenger train which was rerouted at near-by Haslett.

Fred O. Schuman, public relations director for the Works Progress Administration in Michigan, which has its office near by, said a number of automobiles were wrecked and five persons who stood beside the track were reported to have been pinned against the outside wall of the depot.

United Campaign Against Traffic Accidents Called

Consolidation of traffic enforcement to reduce accidents and fatalities during the winter season will be undertaken at 10 o'clock this morning at a conference of all officers assigned to traffic, Assistant Chief G. Neal Ellis, in charge of traffic, announced yesterday.

Following receipt of information from Emmett Elliott, traffic engineer, showing that 40 intersections in the downtown area furnished more than 12 per cent of all accidents recorded in Atlanta up until October 1, Ellis said he proposes to institute an educational and enforcement campaign designed to improve conditions.

Despite the fact that traffic signal lights are at 31 of the intersections, and stop signs at eight others in the study prepared by Elliott, a total of 363 accidents were registered, 9.75 per intersection. This compares with a total of 2,956 accidents throughout the city up until October 1.

One Without Controls. Only one of the intersections included in the study, Auburn avenue and Pryor street, had no traffic controls, and 12 accidents were listed for it.

"What we need and what we must have is co-operation of every driver who gets behind a wheel, and we need the constant vigilance of every enforcement officer," said Elliott. "When we get that we will avoid every avoidable accident."

Up until noon yesterday 27 fatal accidents had occurred in Atlanta since the first of the year, as compared to 25 for the same period last year; 1941 accidents were listed at 2,956, as against 2,533 for 1940, and 867 were injured for the current period, as against 894 for the same time last year.

The death of a motorcyclist last night brought the total of fatalities to 28 since the first of the year.

Ellis said other cities also are showing an increase in accidents and that it was attributed for the most part to an increase of from 10 to 15 per cent in congestion.

Elliott listed the following intersections in his studies, with the accidents charged to each: Auburn and Courtland, 8; Auburn and Pryor, 12; Baker and Ivy, 14; Boulevard and Memorial, 7; Boulevard and Ponce de Leon, 11; Broad and Marietta, 8; Butler and Cain, 10; Butler and Hunter, 7; Cain and Courtland, 12; Cain and Hilliard, 7; Cain and Ivy, 8; Cain and Piedmont, 7; Capitol and Georgia, 12; Central and Georgia, 7; Central and Hunter, 12; Conally and Memorial, 10; Cooper and Glenn, 10; Courtland and Harris, 9; Davis and Mitchell, 9; Ellis and Peachtree, 13.

Forsyth and Hunter, 8; Forsyth and Marietta, 8; Forsyth and Mitchell, 10; Forrest and Piedmont, 8; Frasier and Memorial, 7; Garnett and Whitehall, 7; Georgia and Washington, 8; Glenn and Murphy, 7; Gordon and West Whitehall, 11; Harris and Ivy, 11; Harris and Peachtree, 7; Hunter and Washington, 7; McDaniel and Peters, 9; McDaniel and Whitehall, 10; Marietta and North avenue, 9; Mitchell and Pryor, 8; Mitchell and Spring, 11; Mitchell and Whitehall, 7; North avenue and Spring, 8; Peachtree and Ponce de Leon, 9. Total 363 accidents.

Arnall Blasts Talmadge for 'Usurping' Duty

and become an attaché of the Governor's office rather than a disloyal and insubordinate appendage to the office of attorney general."

The chunky attorney general went further and declared: "I intend to see to it that the Governor is not going to take over control of the State Law Department in the same manner in which he has despoiled so many of the departments of state government."

Arnall declared that as long as he served as attorney general and constitutional head of the State Law Department, it would be his purpose to act as attorney general and not allow the Governor and his appointees to "usurp the prerogatives legally reposed in the attorney general."

"It was never intended by the framers of the constitution that a Governor should usurp the rights and duties of the attorney general, a branch of the judicial department of state government, by seeking advice from subordinates who decline to discuss the state's legal affairs with the head of the legal department," he said, and emphasized:

"I want it clearly understood that if any assistant attorney general feels that the proprieties involved do not require his loyalty, or at least his courtesy to the attorney general, his chief, and that he is amenable only to the Governor, then certainly he is not an assistant attorney general, but more nearly fills a position in the nature of an assistant to the Governor."

Authority Limited. In his opinion, Arnall pointed out that an act of the 1941 general assembly authorized the state board to accept, hold and operate "grants, gifts, devises and bequests of real, personal and mixed property of every kind and character," but explained this did not mean the board could pay off the school's indebtedness.

The attorney general held "there can be no doubt as to the authority of the State Board of Education to take over and operate the Georgia Vocation and Trades school, but the authority to do so must be exercised in the manner and within the limits defined by the act of 1941."

The separate opinion of Johnson and Tuten was along the same line.

Only at the insistence of Dr. Collins, who probably would be liable under bond, did the Governor call for an opinion, since he consistently had maintained that the transaction would be legal and there was no need for a ruling.

Engineered Resolution. At the last meeting of the board he engineered the resolution by which the members voted to take over and operate the school.

When he released the ruling of Johnson and Tuten, the Governor said he had no comment on it.

However, he will be presiding over the board when it meets today to act on the Barron school transfer.

Reminded that the board would have two separate rulings before it, the chief executive quoted a verse from the book of Proverbs to the effect that "in the multitude of counselors there is safety."

Although State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. had not completed his audit of the institution, he estimated that the debts might run more than $30,000.

A special committee which has been in session for two days, is expected to have some kind of recommendation today. Observers predicted the board would still take over the school, but would find some other way of doing it, in view of the legal opinions.

druggists, dentists, nurses and all others served by his office did not have all their fees.

"If they do not get these fees necessary to carry out their work it will be because they were withheld by a power beyond my official control," he said.

In making his statement, Wilson explained that when he was not permitted to carry out the duties and responsibilities fixed upon him by law, he thought that failure to inform the people would be an act of "cowardly omission unworthy of trust."

Red Cross War Relief Efforts Are Described

Millions in Medical Aid Sent Fighting Nations, Speaker Says.

The American Red Cross is sending millions of dollars worth of medical supplies to the nations fighting for freedom and more and more ships are now crossing the oceans without damage, J. Harrison Heckman, of Washington, administrative assistant manager of the eastern area of the Red Cross, declared yesterday at a northwest Georgia regional conference at the Biltmore hotel.

Heckman said relief supplies are being sent the countries that request them and added that more than $3,000,000 in medical supplies have been shipped over the Burma road to China, but that China needs guns and ammunition more than it does bandages and medicines right now.

"An average of six ships partially loaded with Red Cross supplies are leaving this country each week now," he said.

Heckman, in two addresses during the institute which was attended by approximately 100 Red Cross workers, outlined the part the organization is to play in foreign service and national defense.

Dr. Frank K. Boland, chairman of the Atlanta chapter, Francis P. Simerly, general field representative, Mrs. Robert M. Hitch, executive secretary of the Savannah chapter, and others were on the day-long program devoted principally to Red Cross roll call solicitation.

Vinson Seeks To Limit Profit On Navy Pacts

Bill Is Introduced To Permit Gains of Only 7 Per Cent.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Declaring that profits on naval defense contracts had reached as high, in at least one instance, as 247 per cent, Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, today introduced in the house a bill to limit all profits on government defense contracts to a net of 7 per cent.

The Georgia congressman, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, said the profit limitation measure was the outgrowth of an investigation conducted by his committee of naval defense contracts. Some of the profits shown have been out of all reason, he charged.

At the same time, Representative Vinson announced that the whole subject of naval defense contracts would be aired in public hearings to be opened by his committee around December.

Negro 'Cyclist Is City's 28th Traffic Victim

Machine Swerves, Hurls Rider Against Pole, Breaking Neck.

Atlanta's 28th traffic death of the year occurred last night when a Negro, Major Edgar Harris, 25, of 220 Dunlap street, was killed in a motorcycle accident on Capitol avenue, near Weyman avenue, according to Police Chief Neal Ellis.

Harris suffered a broken neck when the motorcycle, he was riding south on Capitol avenue swerved abruptly into the curb, throwing him against an electric light pole, according to Patrolmen A. C. Potts and G. E. Wallace.

Witnesses said the accident occurred when the side car of the motorcycle came loose. Harris was employed by the Cunningham Motorcycle Company.

The fatality was the first for the month as compared with two deaths during the same period in October of last year.

Captured Flag Of Confederacy Back in State

Five Veterans Present as Faded Banner Comes Home.

While the bands played "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle" five Confederate veterans sat silently with their walking canes yesterday in front of the state capitol and saw a Confederate flag, full of bullet holes, officially come back to Georgia from Michigan.

There was little to kindle their fighting spirit. To them it must have appeared more like the signing of a peace treaty. The Yanks and the Rebels and the bitter battles between the two were only memories.

Because, after all, the Michigan legislature, out of the kindness of its heart, had offered to return this faded standard to Georgia because it thought the flag belonged here. It was captured during the War Between the States.

In accepting the flag the Governor thanked the Governor and people of Michigan for "this patriotic and friendly gesture to Georgia and the south."

The Governor appealed to civilians to enroll in the state's air-raid warning service so that the observation posts may be manned fully when scheduled Army maneuvers begin October 20 in eastern and central Georgia.

Among those participating in the ceremony were members of the State Defense Corps and the Old Guard Battalion of Atlanta, complete with swords, shakos and blue-and-cream uniforms.

Lieutenant Colonel Henry A. Lawrence, commandant of the Old Guard, presented the flag to the Governor. He and Mrs. Arthur McD. Wilson Jr., immediate past president of the Atlanta Ladies' Memorial Association, went to Michigan to return the flag.

Nazis Contract To Send War Goods to Turks

Germans to Receive Half of Nation's Chromium After 1942.

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 7.—(AP) A German-Turkish trade agreement due to be signed tomorrow will give Germany at least half of Turkey's important chromium production after 1942, diplomatic informants reported tonight.

For the remainder of this year and all of 1942 Germany will get no chromium, all of which now goes to British and American interests.

During 1943 and 1944, however, the Germans were said to have demanded at least 100,000 tons annually, three-fourths of one-half of all Turkey's output of this element essential to high grade steels.

In return, the Turks are promised about $15,000,000 worth of war equipment starting immediately, but will not get the airplanes which they principally wanted, a competent authority said. A number of motor vehicles, without tires, are among the goods promised to Turkey.

The agreement, negotiated during the past several days by a German delegation headed by Dr. Karl Clodius, economic expert, is understood to provide for exchanges totaling about $75,000,000.

The Germans had evidently run into stubborn Turkish resistance to any sort of concession concerning the chromium ores, which Britain has tied up for the past several years.

American and British interests, which had cautioned the Turks any breach in this agreement would have a serious effect on opinion in those countries, remarked upon hearing of the German-Turkish pact that, after all, Germany was getting no chromium here at least until January, 1943, and "anything can happen" to change the situation before then.

FLAG COMES BACK—Five aged Confederate veterans sat on the sidelines yesterday and watched the Governor accept a bullet-riddled Confederate flag returned to Georgia from Michigan. They poked their walking canes in great glee when the Governor and Adjutant General

Sion B. Hawkins held the flag up for them to examine. The veterans, left to right, are Colonels C. M. Dupree, who is 95; J. T. Pittman, 96; H. T. Dowling, 95; L. J. Snellgrove, 96, and Major General J. R. Jones, 97, commander of the Georgia division of the U. C. V.

House Defeats Move To Bar Loans to Reds

Billion and Half Voted Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(INS) In the first demonstration of congressional sentiment on the issue of American aid to Soviet Russia, the house today defeated, 69 to 25, a proposal to prohibit loans to the Soviet Union by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The vote was considered on Capitol Hill as a sign that congress will reject also the efforts of non-interventionists to ban aid to Russia under the new $5,900,000,000 lend-lease fund, scheduled for a vote on Friday.

Decisive defeat of the amendment, by Representative Smith, Republican, Ohio, preceded by a few moments final passage on a voice vote of the measure to give another $1,500,000,000 to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which Loan Administrator Jesse Jones said was "virtually exhausted."

Efforts of the "no war bloc" to exclude Russia from benefits under American aid programs, an issue smoldering since outbreak of the Russo-German conflict, were hotly debated for the first time in the house during consideration of the bill.

Assured by Jones. Despite assurances by Jesse Jones that none of the money would go to the Soviet Union, Smith, in offering his amendment, said that congress must make "doubly sure" of this.

"I do not favor spending the money of American taxpayers to aid Communist Russia," he said. "I don't think the United States is in such a position that it has to do that."

Representative Gore, Democrat, Tennessee, declared the United States should willingly aid "any country that is fighting Germany," to which Smith retorted:

"Our hardest struggle will be against forces inside, and not forces outside of our country."

Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas, said that "it is better to spend American dollars than American blood in defeating Hitler."

Intimates Strong Fight. Representative Fish, Republican, New York, non-interventionist, said the issue would be more fully debated on the lend-lease bill Thursday. He intimated a strong fight would be waged in support of an amendment to bar Russian aid which Representative Day, Republican, Illinois, has announced he will introduce.

An announcement by House Minority Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, that house Republicans would meet tonight to discuss the lend-lease bill and possibly the Russian issue, served to support the belief a major debate is being planned.

Both Democratic and Republican members agreed earlier to take final action on the big lend-lease bill Friday, limiting general debate to two days. The house will meet one hour earlier than usual Friday in an attempt to obtain a vote before the weekend recess.

Speaker Rayburn expressed the opinion that the opposition to the proposed amendment directed against Russia was "not dangerous" and that the measure would pass easily.

12 in Wedding Party Are Believed Drowned JUAREZ, Chihuahua, Mexico, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Twelve members of a wedding party were believed to have drowned yesterday, pitched from an upset home-made boat into the treacherous Conchos river. The tragedy was reported to have occurred 75 miles north of Chihuahua City, capital of Chihuahua state.

The boat, carrying the wedding celebrants to the town of Carizo, capsized in the middle of the Conchos, swollen by two-day rains. Only one occupant reached safety, the reports said.

Albert Gossett, chairman, said he would call a meeting early next week. "I believe the successor must be chosen from this list," said Gossett. "It is to be hoped that all politics will be avoided."

Admiral Wilcox Says U. S. Fleet Is World's Finest

By FRANK DRAKE.

In the midst of all the hurry-scurry of national defense preparation, a Navy admiral yesterday produced a shining note of cheer for every loyal American.

The United States, he says, is building much the finest ships of war of any country in the entire world!

That is the unequivocal statement of Rear Admiral John W. Wilcox, native Georgian, who, as president of the Navy's Board of Inspection and Survey, should know what he is talking about.

Despite the American shipyards rushing construction even ahead of schedule by months, the workmanship and materials going into the vessels being built cannot be surpassed by any nation, the admiral declared.

Meet All Tests.
His opinion is based on such tests as running a big ship full speed ahead for four hours and then slamming her in reverse at full speed—to see if she will hold together under such treatment. The ships being built for the Navy are holding together all right, and are standing more rigid tests than they will ever be called upon to perform in any kind of service, the admiral said.

Admiral Wilcox, a hale, baldish fellow of 59, is full of hope for the radically new-type ships such as the "Sea Otter," the flat-bottomed, automobile-engine-powered metal ship of 1,500-ton capacity that was built in about 30 days recently at a Texas port.

He and his board of inspection and survey will give the "Sea Otter" her sea trials and inspection October 21 at Charleston, S. C., he announced. The low-lying electrically-welded boat will be brought to Charleston for the tests immediately, he said.

"It will be ideal to build many small ships for war duty," Admiral Wilcox declared, "because they furnish just that many more targets which the enemy will have to hunt out. These ships being built today will outlast all of us and will be good for service for years after this emergency."

To Visit New Orleans.
The admiral was here yesterday en route to New Orleans to give tests to a new net tender (for placing and tending antisubmarine nets), which was built in West Virginia and floated down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans.

He has a son, Arthur Wilcox, a sophomore at Georgia Tech, and Miss Clifford Wilcox, of 1255 Clifton road, and a brother, W. L. Wilcox, of 1206 Emory drive, whom he visited here. The admiral was born in Milledgeville and was reared at Macon before entering Annapolis and the Navy in 1901.

A generally pleasant man, the admiral was high in his praise for American engineers and workmen.

"Give American engineers a free hand and something is bound to happen," he said as he told of inspecting an 80-foot model of the "Sea Otter" some months ago. This ship is so radically designed that it has its propellers in the middle and is divided into several compartments, any of which could be hit by a torpedo and still not cause the ship to sink.

Didn't Think Would Run.
"When I first saw the model, I didn't believe it would run," the Georgian commented. But it did.

Last week at the Texas port the "Sea Otter" was completed. It carries a small crew and it lies so low in the water, even when not loaded, that its decks are awash all the time. The crew stays inside the ship, like the crew of a submarine. Officials said it leaves no smoke trail and is so low it will be hard for enemy ships and submarines to sight it.

Admiral Wilcox promoted in 1938—two years ahead of his schedule—was commander of the "goodwill fleet" to South America last year. While on the tour, a cartoonist in Ecuador drew a caricature of the admiral on his friendship visit.

"The admiral's wife didn't like it and threw it out the window," the admiral's brother said.

The admiral was here yesterday to visit his brother and sisters while en route to inspect a new ship at New Orleans. He is president of the Navy's board of inspection and survey, and declares that Americans are building the best ships in the entire world. Admiral Wilcox, a native of Milledgeville, has a son, Arthur, at Tech.

Belgrade.

By The Associated Press.

Mass armed revolt in the heart of old Yugoslavia, led by a Serbian girl, was acknowledged by Berlin last night, along with announcements of new troubles and repressive measures in other occupied countries east and west of the Reich.

Rebel bands of guerrilla soldiers and armed farmers in the Serbian region of former Yugoslavia stormed the town of Sabac, only 35 miles west of Belgrade, and, according to Berlin's own account, seriously threatened it until German regular army troops aided by the uniformed guard of the Pro-Axis Croat Leader Pavelic were rushed into battle.

The rebels, said to have been led by the daughter of a Serbian attorney, were reported by the Germans to have been smashed under attack by all branches of the Reich army.

In Paris, scene of frequent attacks upon German occupation troops, the body of a woman anti-Bolshevik leader was found in the Seine. She had been strangled, weighted and trussed in a crime which Paris authorities said was liable to "create a great sensation."

73 Reprisal Executions.

The German authorities in Paris announced that the total number of persons executed in occupied France in reprisal for attacks on Nazi troops now had risen to 73. A German dispatch from Prague reported the execution of six more persons in the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia, heart of former Czechoslovakia, charged with preparation of high treason, economic sabotage and possession of weapons without a permit. Only yesterday it was announced five had been similarly put to death; scores had been executed previously.

These executions brought the known total among Czech to 126 in connection with the abortive rebellion in the protectorate.

Meanwhile, the synagogues of Bohemia-Moravia were closed on grounds they had become "assembly places for subversive Jewish elements and centers of a whispering campaign."

With the Gestapo investigation still under way, General Alois Elias, Czech premier who was sentenced to death last week, had his execution postponed so he could testify against others.

Former Mayor Klapka, of Prague, a principal witness against General Elias on Wednesday, was shot Saturday.

Oslo Ban Reported.

A trickle of news from occupied Norway announcing that the chief of police of Oslo had banned the wearing of all badges "which are of a character demonstrative against the new order" indicated that opposition to Hitler rule was continuing in the north, despite severe repressive measures already taken there.

Meanwhile, Premier Mussolini decreed the death penalty for plotting against the state in all Italian-annexed territories.

As commander of Italian troops on all fronts, Mussolini issued the decree dated October 3, fixing the death penalty for the following crimes in annexed territories:

Acts aiming at disturbing the unity, independence and integrity of the state; destruction, plunder and massacre aimed against the security of the state; promoting,

Extension of Waterway
Would Cost About
$2,500,000.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—

Approval for extension of the Louisiana-Texas intracoastal canal southward to the Mexican border by dredging a channel nine feet deep and 100 feet wide from Corpus Christi, Texas, to the Ito Grand valley, was urged upon the House Rivers and Harbors Committee today.

As the committee concluded hearings on the canal extension, it prepared to receive testimony on navigation and flood control improvements for the Trinity river in Texas at a cost of $114,500,000. The Trinity waterway would be a feeder tributary to the intracoastal canal.

Estimated cost of dredging the intracoastal canal extension was $2,500,000, with an annual maintenance cost of $250,000. The waterway would extend 127 miles from Corpus Christi down through Laguna Madre, a shallow strip of water separating the Texas mainland from Padre Island. Its new southern terminus would be Port Isabel, Brownsville and Harlingen.

Woman Who Was Guest of F. D. R. Is Here

Young Lady of 75,
Visits Brother.

By FRANK DRAKE.

A young lady of no small determination is Mrs. L. R. P. Jordan, 75 going on 100, who yesterday was visiting her brother, Dr. A. G. DeLoach, at 762 Penn avenue, N. E.

Mrs. Jordan, of Wadley, Ga., is the woman who, knowing that she was going blind, wanted to see President Roosevelt, whom she considers the greatest man in the world, just one time before darkness overcame her.

So she saw him, something that isn't at all easy to do in these busy times. She went to see him in Washington and came Thanksgiving Day she and he are going to eat one of her turkeys together—provided the President can arrange to be in Warm Springs. She hasn't heard definitely, yet.

For about 70 years of her life Mrs. Jordan lived at home, raised 23 stepchildren, married three husbands, and longed to go places and do things. After three score and ten were gone, she started doing them.

About five years ago she was in Atlanta and told her brother she had never been out of the state and wanted to go to Chattanooga. He said his car wasn't running well and perhaps they'd better wait. That didn't suit Mrs. Jordan at all.

She hid herself out to Candler Field, climbed aboard a plane and flew to Chattanooga—for her first trip out of Georgia and her first airplane ride. Nothing daunted her.

Since then she's been on the go. She's toured Florida twice, been to North Carolina, and Washington and other cities and has met the President and become good friends with him.

She was here yesterday to see about an operation on one of her eyes. One is blind and the other partially so, but doctors think an operation in about a month or two may preserve the sight in this eye. She is determined that it shall, just as she is determined to live to be 100 years old!

To live to be a centenarian she believes she should keep active and late hours. Midnight or later in Wadley she and Mrs. Willa D. Evans, with whom she lives, sit up until the wee sma' hours shell-peas and beans which they can the next day.

"This season we've put up over 2,000 cans," she says.

Brunswick Firm Gets Tug Contract

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Maritime Commission signed contracts today for six C-3 cargo ships of 17,615 tons displacement to be delivered in 1943.

The contract is with the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corporation, of Birmingham, Ala., at $3,160,000 for each vessel.

The commission announced also that it had signed contracts for six small harbor tugs at a cost of $290,000 each, four to be built by the Brunswick (Ga.) Marine Construction Corporation, and two to be built by the General Ship & Engine Works of East Boston, Mass. All of the tugs will be delivered next year.

The commission said that the six cargo ships were the largest and fastest of their type designed by the commission for cargo purposes. They will be 492 feet long, with a beam of 69 feet 2 inches, and a draught of 27 feet 3 inches. Their engines will develop 8,500 horsepower to provide a normal sea speed of 16 1-2 knots and a cruising radius of 14,320 miles.

W. M. Rainey, DeKalb School Official, Quits

Resignation Due to Eye-sight Defect; Neely Named Successor.

W. M. Rainey, DeKalb county school superintendent since 1925, resigned his position because of an eyesight defect, Commissioner Scott Candler announced yesterday.

The board of education has appointed H. K. Neely to succeed him, it was said. Rainey pointed out in a letter to Candler and the county teachers that he was advised by physicians that the sight of his right eye is failing because of a cataract, and that his left eye is also affected.

He will seek treatment in Hot Springs, Ark., and later at the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., and will return to his post if his eyesight allows, Candler said.

Neely has served as principal of several DeKalb schools and was in charge of books and supplies for the system last year. He is a graduate of Presbyterian College.

Soldier-Mechanic Class Graduated

The first class of 133 soldier-mechanics to graduate from the Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster Motor Transport School yesterday received their diplomas at Fort McPherson and prepared to return to home stations to "Keep 'Em Rolling" for Uncle Sam's mechanized Army.

They completed three months of training in courses including study of engine, chassis, carburetor, electrical parts, and motorcycles. Some were also trained as welding and blacksmith specialists, body and radiator repairmen, and machinists.

Georgia members of the class were Private Charles A. Bates, of Clem; Private First Class Floyd W. Bryant, of Atlanta; Private Isaac Corbitt, of Kirkland; Corporal William T. Eaves, of Drake; Private First Class Homer W. Gullatt, of Columbus; Sergeant Turner E. Johnson, of Wrens, and Sergeant Raymond A. Pippin, of Forsyth.

War Risk Rate On Cargo Cut To 4 Per Cent

Insurance Men Carefully
Refrain From Commenting on Reason.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—War risk insurance rates on the cargoes of British and Allied combatant nation ships sailing the Atlantic from the Western Hemisphere to Portugal and Gibraltar were ordered reduced by American marine insurance underwriters today.

Premiums will be cut, effective tomorrow, to 4 per cent of the value of the shipments from the present 5 per cent.

Announcement of the reduction, which also affects shipments to the Atlantic ports of Spain and to Madeira, the Azores, the Canaries and Cape Verde Islands, came at about the same time Secretary Ickes said that Britain, "due to greatly diminished sinkings" might soon be able to release 10 to 15 American tankers now carrying oil in British service.

Chinese Anniversary

On Friday next Chinese all over the world will celebrate the 30th anniversary of the founding of the Chinese republic. A nation of 450,000,000 people chose democracy for their form of government, 30 years ago. Today the anniversary, for the fourth consecutive year, finds them putting up one of the most heroic fights in the history of mankind against a ruthless and heartless invader.

For four years China has been going through fires of hellish agony. Yet, despite the sorrow that reports on deaths by tens of thousands bring, it is comforting to realize that, after the agony is over, a greater and a finer and a stronger democracy will emerge.

Nothing that could have happened could have so completely unified the Chinese as has this Japanese "Incident." Prior to that time a comparatively small group of educated Chinese were struggling to awaken the mass of the people to the meaning of individual liberty, to the value of democratic government. But the nation was ridden by grafting minor officials. It was divided into warring camps of rival brigands, masquerading under the title "general," and the people, as a whole, were the victims of greed and cruelty of these mis-called "leaders."

Then came the Japanese invaders and, slowly at first, the Chinese nation united to resist. Under the leadership of Chiang Kai-shek and his wonderful wife, they have become a unified nation. For they have but one purpose as a nation, to rid their soil of the hated invaders and to create a finer way of life after the enemy has been driven away.

Today Chinese resistance to the Oriental unit of the Axis powers is vitally important in the world-wide conflict between democracy and totalitarianism. This is evidenced by the aid, under the lease-lend bill, the United States government is sending. The American people, not only from sentiment, but from the cold logic of war's strategy, must see that China, in the end, emerges triumphant and free from the war she has fought so long.

It is perhaps especially fitting that this 30th anniversary comes at a time when United China Relief is asking the American people to contribute $5,000,000 for that cause. Nowhere in the world will a dollar go so far in alleviating suffering and in preventing starvation.

The United States government can, and is, sending vital implements of warfare to the Chinese armies. Through United China Relief individual Americans can contribute their dollars for an equally vital purpose, the healing of the injured, the succor of civilian victims of the war and the upholding of Chinese morale.

The young Chinese republic is 30 years old. It is but fitting that it should look to the United States, the older democratic sister, for help in an hour of greatest need.

A new scientific theory is that the hen's cackle when she lays an egg, at 55 cents a dozen, is akin to laughter.

W. R. C. Smith

Wilbur Richard Carroll Smith died yesterday morning. The knowledge that "W. R. C." as he was known to thousands of Atlantans, has ended his career will bring sorrow to everyone of those friends.

Mr. Smith was a native of Michigan. He first came to Atlanta in his early thirties, as representative of a New York publishing company. Impressed with the potentialities of the new south, he severed that connection and founded the W. R. C. Smith Publishing Company, which today publishes five of the leading trade journals of the country, the consolidation of fourteen original publications Mr. Smith either bought or founded.

It was as a civic enthusiast, however, Mr. Smith was best known to Atlantans. For twenty years he devoted the greater part of his time and his effort to undertakings and to work for the advancement of his adopted city. He served as president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce during World War and post-war years. He was a past president of the Atlanta

Rotary Club and later served as district governor of Rotary, in the years when the district comprised 22 states. He organized and directed the Forward Atlanta advertising campaign and had charge of various important wartime activities, including direction of the Liberty Loan trains through the southeast. He was chairman for Fulton county of the United War Work campaign.

In recent years Mr. Smith's health forced his withdrawal from active participation in civic affairs, but he retained to the last an abiding enthusiasm for this city and its growth and betterment. His memory will live as long as Atlanta endures, for his life is woven into the very fabric of the city's progress.

People who live in glass houses can find a topepot in October in the closet under the stars.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis

If there is any one phrase descriptive of the great and good man who died Sunday in Washington, it is "social responsibility."

For Justice Louis D. Brandeis exemplified the growth of the United States toward a recognition of social responsibility. He believed democracy is a living organism which could not live if it became paralyzed by tradition or straitjacketed by privilege.

In his view, "life and liberty as guaranteed by our constitution should be interpreted according to the demands of social justice and of democracy as the right to live, not merely to exist. In order to live, men must have the opportunity of developing their faculties; and they must live under conditions in which their faculties may develop naturally and healthily. . . . Men and women must have leisure, which the Athenians called 'freedom' or liberty. In the second place, the earnings of men and women must be greater, so they must live under conditions conducive to health and to mental and moral development. Our American ideals cannot be attained unless an end is put to the misery due to poverty."

Brandeis properly has been termed a "social inventor." His major thought and effort sought constructive social purpose. His technique once was described by former Chief Justice Hughes thus: "No keener blade has ever been used, but it is the knife and skill of the surgeon exploring the operations of the social organism with the purpose of cure." His "sliding scale system" brought cheaper public utility rates and sounder securities; he proved that railroads wasted a million dollars a day through poor management; he punctured the American delusion that "bigness" in trusts and large corporations meant efficiency; he evolved the "preferential union shop" principle which has been so largely adopted today; he spotlighted the social and economic wastes of unemployment, the crushing burden of long hours and low wages, and how business by scientific management could regularize unemployment.

He fought for workmen's compensation; for unions, seeing in them a check and balance against concentrations of industrial power against which the individual was helpless, and conceiving unionism as one of the best means of solving the problem of underconsumption. Yet he saw the dangers of abuse in unionism. He opposed the closed shop, and in 1926 joined in a unanimous supreme court decision holding that "neither the common law nor the fourteenth amendment confers the absolute right to strike." He fought for unionism, yet demanded that the unions be held to account for any abuse of responsibility.

Brandeis sought to maintain the life blood of democracy. It was his guiding light. He saw, on one hand, the evils of concentrated wealth, of interlocking power, of predatory poverty and, on the other hand, the abuses which even today have weakened labor in the eyes of most Americans.

If ever a man sought the greatest good for the greatest number, it was this man who has left us, but who left much of his greatness an integral part of the nation.

What ever became of the girl in the song "With the wind and the rain in her hair"? Did she get a wave and land her man?

Georgia Editors Say:

WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

(From The West Point News)

Recent criticism in Washington of the "failure" of America's defense program raises the question of responsibility for any negligence that may exist. If the criticism is true, it is time to bring the facts into the open.

But what are the facts? When the defense program was first undertaken, Washington indicated that "business as usual" was to remain the order of the day; defense production was to be piled on top of the existing production load. Appropriations were made for the manufacture of defense equipment, but compared to today's total appropriations, the amounts were relatively small. These figures were later increased, but with each increase, new production problems had to be solved, new factories planned and built, new machine tools manufactured.

As it is, only slightly more than half of the $45,939,000,000 that had been appropriated for defense by June 30 of this year has been let out in contracts, and a disproportionately large amount of these were let just before the end of the fiscal year, June 30. If critics are seeking a primary cause of production delay, there it is. The fault is not industry's. Figures show that manufacturers are running on schedule and sometimes ahead of schedule on orders that have been placed.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

HARDLY WORTH COMMENT WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—On the surface it would seem little more need be said of Colonel Charles Lindbergh's latest attack on the administration, in which he imputes to President Roosevelt some sinister plan for calling off the 1942 congressional elections, than that he is following the familiar line of political opportunists who shout "dictatorship" after all of their other arguments fail.

For some months now the erstwhile national hero, in his new-found role of crusader against British aid and the administration's foreign policy, has been charging up and down the country giving all who would hear him a frenzied appraisal of European war events. Thus far he has proved to be wrong in his veiled predictions that the British would not be able to stand up against the German onslaught; hence, that we were backing a losing cause. He was even further off when he reported, after an unofficial survey of the Russian air force, that Soviet air power was incapable of holding its own against the Nazis.

There is reason to believe that he was even less accurate in his appraisal of American public sentiment implied in the proposal put forward in one of his speeches that we should negotiate a security pact with Hitler and rest on this to keep us out of the war. Certainly, in the light of all national polls on the subject and the wholesome support the administration's foreign policy is receiving in congress, there is no justification for the assumption that the American people would feel safe in relying on such a pact. How it could have been proposed after Hitler's invasion of Russia should be a mystery to the psychologists and the other specialists in the quirks of the human mind.

PEOPLE BECOMING BORED?

"Fight for Freedom" organization, puts it, that the American people "are becoming bored" with what Colonel Lindbergh says, that what he utters "doesn't mean anything any more."

It may also be, as the Louisville editor asserts further, that Lindbergh has gone into "his familiar sulk" again, that "he has delusions of persecution and thinks that people want to stop him from speaking; there is no justification for the assumption that the American people would feel safe in relying on such a pact. How it could have been proposed after Hitler's invasion of Russia should be a mystery to the psychologists and the other specialists in the quirks of the human mind."

In short, what Mr. Lindbergh says is no longer important. ANOTHER SIDE All of which may be true from the standpoint of the picture worthy of more than passing comment. It might be a far more serious side.

James H. R. Cromwell, the former American minister to Canada and a staunch supporter of the administration's foreign policy, makes the point that Colonel Lindbergh, by virtue of the zealous following he has among his elements in the country, is capable of doing the nation irreparable injury by inciting some fanatical worshiper to make an attempt on the life of the President.

Not that the aviator would consciously be a party to any such thing. It might be the result of his misguided zeal in inflaming people's minds against mythical plans for calling off elections and his fictional fears of a dictatorship.

MORE SERIOUS ACTION

It is one thing, as Mr. Cromwell forcefully points out, for a public figure to take issue with the policy of the national administration on foreign affairs, but it is quite another and a more serious proposition for that person in a time of national emergency to seek to poison the public mind with false or half-baked charges. It is the sort of thing that assassinations are born of. Lindbergh, through his intemperate speeches, might easily inflame one of his fanatical followers to take a shot at the President.

And so, while it may be true from one standpoint that it is no longer important what Lindbergh says, since the public is becoming bored with him, it might be altogether the other way if events took the turn in the direction depicted by Mr. Cromwell. Under the circumstances, the former American diplomat feels, Lindbergh has a responsibility which he should recognize. No one suggests that he be denied full freedom of speech, although the cause of national unity would probably be better served if he caught a mild case of lockjaw for a while. But his sponsor organization, the misnamed America First Committee, could at least insist that he adopt a more rational line of argument.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

"Solidly German Regions or Colonies."

There has come to my possession a map of the world, published in 1938 by a Nazi-sponsored Berlin publishing house. It is quite interesting and revealing. It shows what sort of dope the Nazis seek to feed their German dupes and the followers of their so-called "racial facts."

The lines under the map assert "some" 100,000,000 people throughout the world speak German as their mother tongue. Further, "There are Germans everywhere." For centuries, Germans migrated without a master plan, and, therefore, were often lost to the motherland. That is why we value that German racial spirit which has remained and which is "finding its way to together again."

The map itself has many areas shown in black. The black areas, the caption states, are "solidly German regions or colonies of the Second Reich."

Well, you'll be interested in learning what portions of the world the Nazis claim as "solidly German regions or colonies." Of course, by far the larger part of central Europe is included. Even the British Isles, Denmark, Norway, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Belgium, France, Yugoslavia and Greece have all learned what this "finding together" of the "German racial spirit" means to them.

I wish such people as Nye and Lindbergh and Wheeler and Hoover and Vandenberg and the other apostles of appeasement in the U. S. would take a calm, quiet look at the map of the British Isles. And thus learn how much of the United States Germany would claim as part of the "New Order," if we permit Hitler to triumph. Britain to go down and the Nazis to gain control of the British Isles. No one the shipyards of Europe, to build warships and transports and plane carriers to bring their blitzkrieg to this country.

With the aid of the British fleet we transported 2,000,000 men across the Atlantic in 1918. With British cruiser squadrons we kept that fleet in reverse, and on larger scale.

And thus attempt to seize the "solidly German" portions of North America as shown in black on the map of which I write.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. From the news columns of Sunday, October 8, 1916: "Berlin, October 7, 7 p. m.—(Via London, October 8.)—The story circulated abroad that the German ambassador, James W. Gerard, is the bearer of an appeal from the German emperor for peace intervention by the United States is declared authoritatively here to be absolutely without foundation."

And Fifty Years Ago. From the news columns of Thursday, October 8, 1891: "Work on the Grady hospital is not lagging. The contractors are pushing the building rapidly, and the indications are that the hospital will be open by the first of the year."

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

A recent editorial in the Saturday Evening Post mentioned something about an agronomist with a monetary policy who was called into the service of our government . . . etc.

An agronomist is a person who is a theorist regarding field crops and agriculture, soil management, farm production and other related activities.

Agronomist is a noun pronounced a-GRON-o-mist with the accent on the second syllable "gron" with an accent on the (o) like that in contact. The (g) is like that in guard.

Within recent weeks I have noticed that this word is being used with increasing frequency. The growing interest in agricultural production and agricultural chemistry will eventually bring this word into general and almost daily usage.

Apropos Subject

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. I select this week, to present some further essays dealing with corruption in the American Federation of Labor because the AFL is holding its annual convention in Seattle and the boys are trying to divert attention from the works of their colleagues by waving the flag and mouthing loud promises to prevent unnecessary strikes in war industries.

Now I suppose everyone knows that George Browne, the Chicago gangster, is a vice president of the AFL and a member of its governing body, called the executive council, and that he is under indictment in New York on a federal charge of extorting $550,000 from employers through the misuse of his power as president of the movie employees' union. But I am not sure that it is generally known that two other bosses operating under Browne's charter and under the general authority and prestige of the AFL also have been indicted on similar charges since Browne was formally accused. They are Nick Circella, the Chicago dive keeper and stick-up man, who holds Browne's personal appointment as his viceroy in the Chicago area, and Louis Kauffman, of Newark, the dictator and business agent of Local 224.

Kauffman Background

I want to give you a little background material on this Kauffman, who operates in a local way and is unknown outside of his local jurisdiction, but is a fine specimen, nevertheless.

In 1934 a group of robots and slaves holding "junior" membership in Kauffman's union brought a suit in New Jersey which was decided in their favor and the information which I offer here is taken from the opinion of the court.

Kauffman has been business agent of the local since 1920 which was long before Browne became the national president on the liquidation of his predecessor, Tommy Maloy, a Chicago criminal, by shotgun fire. The mob in Kauffman's local held no elections at all in the 10-year period and they extended their terms by resolutions adopted in meetings in which no man dared oppose the gang.

Two Classes Of Members

Under Kauffman's racket there were two classes of members, the seniors and juniors, or slaves. The juniors were fully qualified operators of movie machines, but they were kept in the junior status so that they would not be able to vote. They were, as the court said, "obliged to surrender their jobs to the seniors on demand."

Juniors had to pay 10 per cent of their pay to $50 a week and 15 per cent above $50, and $30 a year dues, so that a junior making $100 a week had to kick in $686 a year, whereas a senior paid only $180 on the same salary. A junior could not become a senior except by consent of the seniors voting and even then he had to pay an initiation fee of $500.

"Only 11 men have been made seniors since 1919," the court said, "seven of whom were closely related to officers of the local; and two others were closely related to high officials of the Newark police department. One of these was a senior because of the influence of his father, who was a high police official. At the time he had been affiliated with the local only six or eight months. Other juniors who have been such for years are still waiting."

Doing Two Jobs

The court also discussed and forbade "off-the-alarms" work "where a member, usually a junior, performs the work of one of the officers in a theater in addition to his own job in another theater and the officer collects the salary, the member actually performing the work, receiving nothing for it."

"Kauffman, the business agent; Cooper, the president; Oppenheimer, the secretary, and Gehring, the assistant business manager, and perhaps others, have been on the pay rolls of the largest theaters for years," the court found. "Some of them (the juniors) worked 16 or more hours a day while getting paid for only half or less of that time. The excuse is that their time (the officers) is taken up with official business and that the officers' salaries are small. Kauffman has not worked since 1929, but has been in receipt of a salary from one of the best paying jobs in Essex county and one of the juniors has performed his work for nothing."

"Modified Slavery"

One witness calculated that he had earned more than $30,000 for which the officers received the pay; another $25,000. The condition resulting from this system is but modified slavery. The juniors are no more than serfs, obedient to the will of the dictatorial officers of whom the business agent, Kauffman, is the supreme dictator. The position of the seniors, except the favored ones, is not much better."

As to the insufficiency of the officers' pay the court found that Kauffman got $150 a week, plus $100 a week, or more, from a theater in which he did not work, $45 a month for auto maintenance and annual "presents" of $5,000 out of the treasury in 1930, 1931 and 1932. In 1931 he also got $1,000, "ostensibly for services on a wage scale commission," plus expenses when attending conventions, notwithstanding the fact that the national body paid the officers traveling costs and $10 a day for living expenses.

I think this will be continued in our next.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

LET'S BUILD A CITY It is very easy to see what the current dog fight in the city government is going to result in if it isn't halted.

It is going to halt everything concerned with the real development of the city. Progress and development are going to be stopped. The creation of angry, bitter, revengeful groups will become intensified and walls of bitterness will be set up which will last for years. It seems to me, as an observer, that it is bad politics. The people don't understand it. If there are any issues they have been obscured and the public generally thinks of the whole thing as just a political fight in which the interests of the city have been ignored or forgot.

That won't do any of the gentlemen holding office any good when they come up for another test at the ballot box. A long, drawn-out, bitter wrangle makes the public sick of the whole thing.

The mayor is honest and earnestly desirous of doing a good job. Council, if it will cool off, wants to do the same thing. It is in an awkward spot now because it is trying to go against public opinion. The public thinks the police chief row is just politics. Even those who do not think the chief as competent as his supporters insist he is, don't think he has had a fair chance. It does no good to say he has. The public somehow got the impression he has not. It would seem to be the better politics to see that he gets one.

Meanwhile, there is the job of building the city. MR. ARKWRIGHT ACCEPTS The chief's opposition, in a position which did not have public support, now has an opportunity to drop the fight which had become an uncomfortably hot potato.

Preston Arkwright has accepted the chairmanship of a committee which will seek to iron out the differences. Presumably this means the dropping of the referendum which no one really wanted. Acceptance of this chairmanship by the man recently designated as Public Citizen Number One ought to give him a designation of One Plus.

Council and mayor had been elected by the people to govern the city. They became involved in a fight which split them beyond repair and which made any agreements impossible.

Mr. Arkwright well, and properly, might have said that city council was elected by the people and that the people would expect it to do its job.

That he accepted rates him as the most valuable citizen, plus. He possesses enough ability to head the committee and he has commonsense which is of an unusually high order so that it cuts through to the heart of any situation with all the speed of a surgeon's knife. He can do the job, and the fact that he took it stamps him as a rare citizen indeed. Not many persons are so willing to be loaded with responsibilities, none of which offers any pay save in headaches of an unusually high potency.

His acceptance does allow council to drop its hot potato. -It should teach the lesson that nothing should be attempted in politics without first discovering what the public thinks.

JOBS TO BE DONE

A good, enthusiastic job of building Atlanta would thrill this city. The auditorium could be put into shape. It lags now with talk the WPA will withdraw. There is talk that steel can't be had. A good, stubborn committee would get that steel, priorities or not. The steel can be had if a city fights for it.

A city can get steel. Talk that it can't is just talk. It can't by writing letters or by asking.

Traffic is important. Traffic is part of defense. The mayor has ideas about a few beauty spots built into the city's available spots. They could be done without too much cost. Initiative and enthusiasm instead of bitter political factional fights would excite the city.

These are the things people talk about. They wonder why elected officials must be fighting about their own personal political patronage when the real job is running the city.

The political row now can be left to the committee which Mr. Arkwright heads. I have an idea the boys are pretty tired of it anyhow. The opportunity to place it in Mr. Arkwright's lap must be a welcome one.

A vigorous campaign to build Atlanta, to bring into its limits the business men who have as their chief interest their buildings and businesses already within its limits, would meet with approval. Those men are needed, not as much for their taxes as for their influence and their presence on the voting rolls. A city which is 600,000 in the daytime and 350,000 at night is not a healthy city. There are things to be done.

Perhaps Preston Arkwright can settle the police chief row and give council a vision about forgetting its personalities and doing a job for the city.

If It Is Too Destructive, Nature Always Provides a Brake

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

It is common knowledge that imported insect pests multiply enormously in this country for want of their natural enemies. And experiments in recent years have shown that rabbits and other creatures, deprived of their natural enemies, soon destroy themselves by multiplying too fast and utterly destroying their natural food supply.

All survival depends upon nature's law of balance. A few years ago an amateur naturalist made a study of predators to discover how nature held them in check and preserved her balance despite their apparent advantage.

One of these was the wolverine or glutton of the northern woods. This vile and greedy creature, though only three feet long, has the strength of a bear. His great claws can take apart a cabin if he has business inside.

Glutton he is, for he can eat almost by his own weight of meat this morning and be ravenously hungry by nightfall. If he can't devour everything in sight, he befools it in pure malice so that no other creature can eat it. He hunts incessantly, and all is grist that comes to his mill.

He is cunning, also, and will carefully uncover a trap and then befool it to show his contempt. Why doesn't such a creature—fearless, strong and forever hungry—multiply and devour all other creatures? The answer is porcupines. He bites into them without regard for quills, and the quills lodge in his mouth and throat and eventually finish him.

The python of South America is another example. Twenty feet long, with no enemy to fear; capable of swallowing a pig or young deer after he has knocked it cold with a lightning blow and squeezed it soft in his crushing coils; justly feared by every creature in the jungle—why doesn't he multiply and destroy the species he feeds upon?

The answer is worms. The animals he swallows have intestinal worms, and when these are turned loose in the python, they soon make an end of him.

Every evil has in itself the germ of its own destruction. It is held in check by its own fatal faults. And so the new order, established by tyranny, is already gnawed by the inherent faults that doom it.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"Oh, dear! Bring your compass in—I've forgotten which is north."

Dudley Glass

Every now and then, when some friend is driving me to town or vice versa in his 1941 sedan—which he says he's going to trade in next week for a new model—we pass a house where a carpenter or a painter or even a lowly yard man, raking leaves, has a car parked out in front.

"No matter how tough times may be," remarks our host, "those people always manage to keep a car."

As far as painters and carpenters and plumbers and the building trades in general are concerned their representatives are usually in a darn sight better position to "keep a car" than a lot of us white-collared toilers.

But consider the "lower classes." The odd job fellows. Who make mighty little, with work depending on weather and this or that. They keep cars—some kind of cars.

Why not? They learned years ago they could move out of semi-slums and buy a little lot out in the country for so much down and so much a year. And put up a modest home with a government loan. And get fresh air and sunshine and decent neighbors for their wives and nice playmates for their children. And maybe raise chickens and plant a garden. And live.

But a man on a job has to get to the job. And pretty little places in the country are not located on trolley lines. So the wage-earner must find transportation. He invests his future in a car. A "jalopy," you call it. Its top leaks and it is full of squeaks and its upholstery is all shot to hell-and-gone and it puffs and snorts on the hills—but it gets him there and it takes him back. And it's swell for the wife and kids on Sundays.

Mostly for Work

I ran across some statistics about used cars. Boiled down, they show that cars eight years old, perhaps in the hands of a fourth owner, are used for about 65 per cent for "business." The rest, I assume, is for pleasure. But I don't think those figures prove much. If they're measured by mileage. For a workman, going to his job and back, wouldn't run up much mileage or consume much gas. He and his wife and youngsters, on a Sunday joy ride, would cover as many miles as he would in six working days.

Workmen's Jalopies'; They Mean Better Life Away Outdoors

And why not? The family stays at home all day, six days a week. Going places is the biggest fun there is. Why not go places? The actual cost is surprisingly little. It may be the old jalopy is slow on the road and gets on the nerves of folk behind it. But the highways belong to all of us. And if the drivers of the superannuated cripples would just keep over to the right.

I'm highly in favor of every family in this nation owning a car—some kind of car—if it can possibly get by with it. There's no better investment. For you don't merely buy steel and rubber. You buy fresh air and a change of scenery and a glimpse of the mountains or perhaps the sea. And a busted-down 1924 model will provide all of them—if it will run. Most of them do.

Time was when a "working man" was forced to live within walking distance—of his job. Those days are gone. I'm glad of it. Atlanta isn't Manhattan Island. We are not cribbed, confined, locked, in a tiny space with land worth a million dollars a square yard—or thereabouts, if you ask about rents. We have all the land between here and Tennessee and Alabama and the Carolinas and Florida and the Atlantic. Plenty of room to spread out. What's another couple of miles, with 18 miles to the gallon?

Atlanta is spreading out. In a big way. It won't show in the census figures. But I picked up a ride last week with a hospitable soul speeding into town. The front seat was nearly gone and I sat on the springs, at the risk of my pants. My host said he had a pretty good job in town—$22 a week and steady. I asked where he lived and he said his little place was about 29 miles out from Five Points. But he had a cow and chickens and had put in a darn good garden. And hell, it wasn't no time at all between his job and his home. He just had to get up a little early—to milk the cow. And pretty soon his little girl would be big enough to do that. Oh yes, there was a good school—just a little piece down the road. With a free bus.

Going to the Fire

Time was when everybody went to a fire. When the big bell rang out folks counted the strokes, looked at the little card every man carried in his coat pocket, exclaimed: "Signal 4-3-1—that's the box at the corner of Spruce and Goose. Bet the feather foundry's on fire! Let's go!"

That was all right. They went on foot, mostly on the sidewalks, and kept out of the way of the fire engines. They were a-skipped not to.

Different now. Folks still go to fires. Especially the young folks out for an evening ride. But they go in automobiles. And clutter up traffic frightfully. Many of them get there before the engines—perhaps they were closer when they heard the sirens sounding.

Atlanta's firemen have complained bitterly about automobiles clogging streets, cutting off access to fire plugs, getting in the way. For no reason except curiosity.

Now a complaint is registered in Albany. Atlanta may get similar complaints as that naval aviation field develops.

Two airplanes crashed in flames near Albany last week. Ambulances and doctors and first aiders and fire equipment dashed to the scene. That is, they tried to dash. But most of Albany was ahead of them on the road. They had traffic trouble. Lots of it.

Turner Field officers issued an appeal to the public: "Let us do it," they begged. "There's nothing you can do. We're equipped to handle such situations—if there's anything left to handle. Stay where you are. Give us a chance. We'll get to Atlanta fires—and to plane crashes if we have any—which I hope we won't."

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

NORTH CAROLINA

My sojourn for these brief days in North Carolina arouses a deeper interest in the state, as well as its capital city of Raleigh. And the chief interest always, of course, is the human equation. Well, here in North Carolina there are 3,569,174 human beings—indeed, there are more than that number, for I am quoting the 1940 figures. Of this number, two and a half million are white, and a million are colored. Approximately a million of the total population of the state live in urban communities, while two and a half million live in rural communities. Half of the people of North Carolina live in what is known as the Piedmont section, and it is in this section that the increase of population is largest. North Carolina stands first among the states in native born white citizens (99.7), and first in size of the average family (4.9 persons). North Carolina is 11th among the states in total population.

Virginia Dare, born on Roanoke Island, August 18, 1587, was the first child born of English parents in the New World. History reveals the fact that Miss Virginia was rather proud of her North Carolina beginnings, and the fine boys and girls of this commonwealth today are quick in telling you that they believe it is altogether a blessing to be born in this great state. I have long admired the example of North Carolina in its progressive program of education, and it all stems from the deep conviction which these people have for the child within the midst. I shall be writing more about this in subsequent columns.

North Carolina is 503 miles long, and 188 miles wide, with 31,193,000 acres of land and 579,200 acres of water area. These North Carolina farmers are going places. Riding across the state last week, I wanted to get off the train and walk out into those fields and shake the hands to those farmers as they gathered their rich yields. They must be happy people. And now about all those acres of water in North Carolina. My friends up here have told me that there are plenty of fish, thanks to their game laws, and I cherish the hope that some of these days I may have the privilege of going fishing in North Carolina. They sell more than $4,000,000 worth of fish every year.

Space restrains me from entering upon any detailed report on the industries of North Carolina. Suffice it to say that North Carolina leads the south in the number of wage earners, and wages paid, and in value added to raw materials by manufacturing processes. That is saying a good deal, I know, but they tell me that these are the facts. Okay.

And about these highways in North Carolina, some 59,213 miles of them, I guess we of Georgia are quite ready to admit that they have set the pace for this part of the south in building highways. My space is gone, and I haven't scratched the surface of the N. C. story.

Notre Dame Is Sugar Bowl Possibility Since Advent of Leahy

Notre Dame Lineup Full Of 'Irishmen'

Here Are A Few Tips on How To Pronounce Stars' Names.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Just in case your Aunt Susie is here for Tech's game with Notre Dame Saturday and asks you who that was running with the ball, here is a little list of pronunciations which will help.

Of course, if you don't like to be nice to Aunt Susie and your wife doesn't make you, then just skip the whole thing and be glad you are not a radio announcer.

This list comes to you through the courtesy of Joe Petrizz, the Notre Dame director of sports publicity who unthoughtfully didn't include his own name. However, we've been calling Joe by his first name for years and intend to continue the practice.

If anybody disagrees on these pronunciations please don't call the sports department because, frankly we don't have the slightest idea whether they are right or not.

"But enough of this tomfoolery," said the boss. So here they are: Hercules Bereolos—bare ee oh-lus.

Angelo Bertelli—ber tell ee. Henry Brosey—broh-ee. Raymond Ebli—ebb' lee. Charles Ellefsen—ell' ee sen. Anthony Girolami—jeer al' ah-mee.

Shvee Jarzik—juzz' wick. Stanley Kudacz—cud' lahts. John Peasenelli—peez en el' ee. Joe Postupack—post' you pack. Louis Rymkus—rim' cuss. Ed Tessaro—tess air' oh.

Walter Ziemba—zim-bah. The Yellow Jacket-Irish contest is attracting widespread interest throughout the nation and one of the best battles of the interesting season is expected.

Veteran Meyer Given Release By Senators

37-Year-Old Won American Batting Title Six Years Ago.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Buddy Meyer, 1935 American League batting champion, was given an unconditional release by President Clark Griffith, of the Washington Nationals, today after 17 seasons in major league baseball.

Meyer, now 37 years old, hit .349 six years ago to win the league championship but, plagued by a stomach ailment, fell in 1936 to .269.

Appearing only occasionally at his former regular post, second base, Meyer batted .252 for the 1941 season.

Griffith, announcing the release said, "I'm sorry I have to do it, but I have to make room for some of my younger players."

Meyer, who is a native of Ellisville, Miss., played 16 seasons with Washington and one—1928—with the Boston Red Sox.

BY JACK TROY

Not in Cards

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—It simply wasn't in the cards for the "Bums" of Brooklyn to win a world championship in baseball. For such an ill-assorted group of athletes they did very well, as it was, to play the Yankees so close all the way.

It's all over and National League fans already are prepared to wrap up next year's flag for the St. Louis Cards. The Cards, who were nosed out this year, probably had a better balanced team, many more outstanding individuals, than did Brooklyn.

Personal nomination for the outstanding player in the series just ended is Joe Gordon. In fact, Gordon is the one who put the Yankees back on top of the world. They were going terribly early in the season. Gordon was at first and the rookies Rizzuto and Priddy were performing as a keystone combination.

The Yankees' star began to rise with the return to second of Gordon, who has no peer at the position. He is absolutely uncanny on defense and, of course, he can rap that tomato as well.

Whitlow Wyatt, of Buchanan, Ga., was the only pitcher on either team to work two games. In his own quiet way—except when DiMaggio spoke out of turn—Wyatt was the star of the Dodgers.

And as things turned out, the world classic virtually was a Dixie series.

Another Flop The fight attractions of that lovable character, Uncle Mike Jacobs, whose store teeth clatter like castanets, reached an all-time low in the last 10 days.

Some 60,000 paid to see Nova stumble around against Louis in a fight that smelled so loud Uncle Mike refused to authorize release of the pictures. This should not be in his power. People the country over should be entitled to see just how lousy the so-called attraction was.

Last night Lew Jenkins and Red Cochrane, fighting before a near-capacity crowd, engaged in a battle of bums. Cochrane did make an effort and hung several knock-down punches on the Jenkins jaw, but Jenkins never made more than a half-hearted effort to swing at his opponent.

Through 10 rounds the farce brought boos from the assembled taxpayers. Uncle Mike's batting average was perfect, however. He promoted two complete flops within a week, and yet the profit was no less than handsome.

Fight-goers are funny folks. If the Yankees and Brooklyn had played one game as bad as either of the recent fights, followers would have booed them out of the park. A continuation would soon kill attendance.

But not so in boxing. Barnum was eminently correct.

Irish Ace Dippy Evans, of Notre Dame, is the talk of the east and middle west. He is a very clever stop-and-go runner, and has been the star of the new Irish attack in the first two games.

The Fighting Irish have departed from the orthodox. They are using the stuff which Leahy employed to put Boston College in successive post-season bowl games.

It was the writer's pleasure to see Boston College play three times last year. It was a very colorful team. And the only difference in Notre Dame this year is in the color of the uniforms.

Grant Field is to be jammed to the last inch of concrete on Saturday for what should be one of the truly spectacular football games of the year.

Georgia Tech is clever and the Irish definitely full of tricks.

The Talk Is Duke Writers of football in New York are going Dixie in their early selections of a Rose Bowl team.

Yank Pennants Won Off Field, Writer Learns

No Troublemakers Among Champs; No Dice, Cards Permitted

By JUDSON BAILEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—This is the inside story of how the New York Yankees have become the greatest dynasty in baseball, winning five world championships in six years and getting primed for more.

The same story may have been obvious outside, watching the marvelous Yanks break the hearts of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series, but we came to realize it in the hotel where the Yankees were celebrating their newest championship and we think the inside story is better.

Thousands of fans saw the Yankees win on the field, but only a handful of sports writers and close friends saw them win off the field. And the groundwork for pennants is laid indoors.

The Yanks were the baseball champions of the world last night and the town was theirs for the taking. They could have had champagne and adoration and excitement at a hundred different spots. But first, they had a quiet little family farewell in a big room at a midtown hotel.

ONE BIG FAMILY.

The players and their wives sat in groups of six or eight around tables, eating, drinking and talking. Joe Gordon, the great second baseman who was the hero of the series, had his coat off. Johnny Sturm and some of the other bachelors had a star table in a corner.

Barrow, Manager Joe McCarthy and some scribes sat in another corner. Mrs. Lou Gehrig was at a table with Mrs. McCarthy and Mrs. Barrow and some others.

In the happy serene surroundings we found out why the Yankees are champions.

"You know, baseball is a romance," philosophized McCarthy. "You can't buy this with money. You have to feel something inside you to appreciate the world championship the way we do."

"Baseball is my life. I love it. I would want to be in it if I didn't make a dime. It's a grand game and sometimes the spirit of it overcomes me."

"BUNCH OF KIDS."

Then McCarthy, a stocky Irishman whose piercing eyes belie the bland peacefulness of his face, talked of his players.

"I have a great bunch of kids. They all get along together. No troublemakers. I don't let them play cards or dice. When you travel with us you'd think they were a bunch of angels. But they have that spirit. They all want to play baseball and when they go out on that field they play for all it is worth, play hard."

Somebody in the circle tried to turn the conversation to the specific and asked what McCarthy thought of Sturm.

"Sturm? He played great. Too many people judge a ball player on the percentages. They look to see what his batting average is, and then they say, 'he's great,' or 'he's no good.' I know this boy. I know what he can do and I know what he can do."

"I don't pay much attention to percentages. It's the boys themselves. Why if I judged Gordon on percentage, I wouldn't have him on my club."

Through all of this Barrow beamed benignly from beneath his tremendous, shaggy eyebrows and McCarthy trained the spotlight in the direction of his boss.

NO INTERFERENCE.

"Ed came into my dressing room today. Do you know that in the first time he had come in there all season? He never asked me who I'm going to pitch. He never says a word about how I run the club. I think that's the finest evidence of his faith in me."

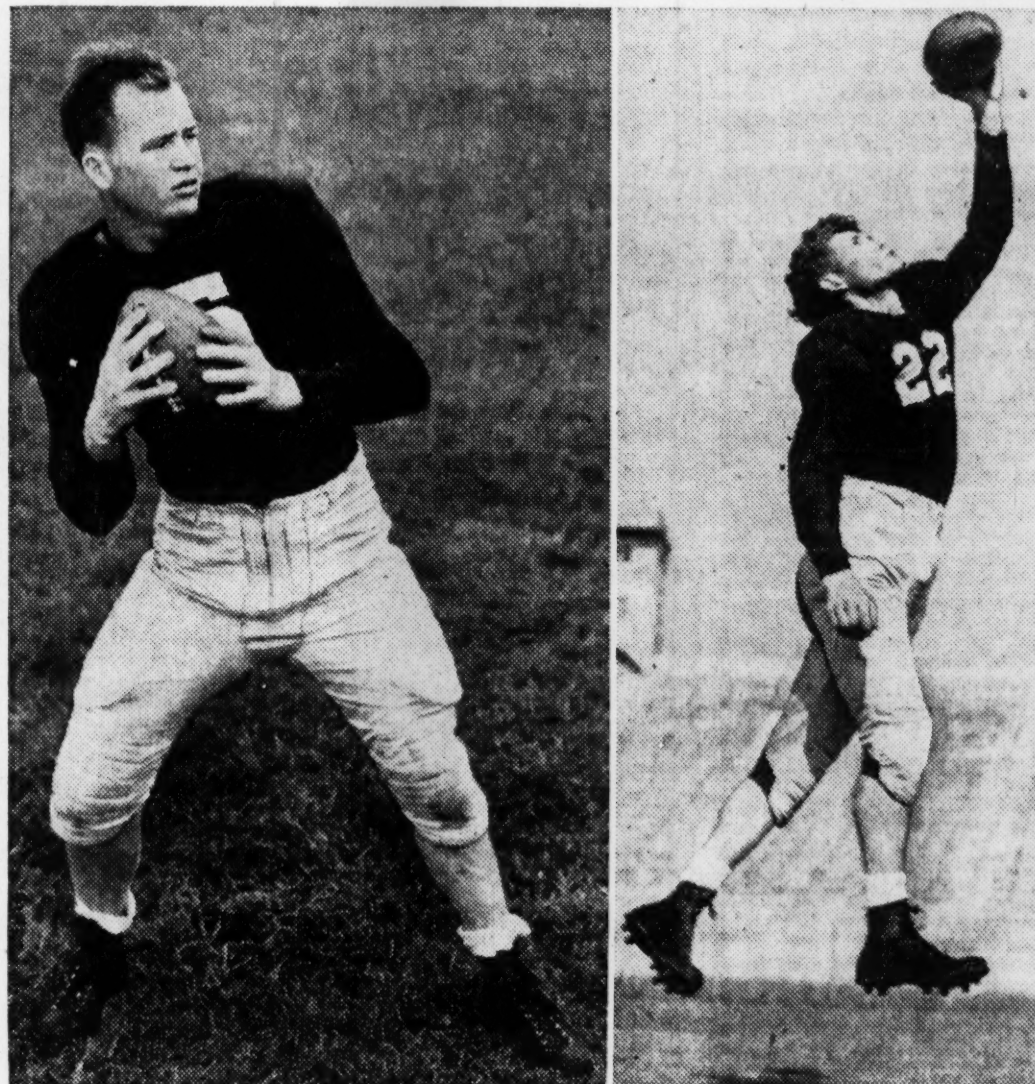

"I'll tell you something that nobody knows, that's never been printed. A long time ago, when Barrow was president of the International League and I was young and just coming up, he tried to get the Yanks to take me. Somebody blocked that. But Barrow always had me in mind. And while I was going from one club to another I always had him in mind. I never thought that some day I would be managing the Yankees. It wasn't anything as definite as that. I just always had a little hope hidden away in the back of my brain that some day I would be working for this big lug. And I hope I can just keep on working for him."

BASEBALL SPIRIT. There was more of this sort of talk, and once it looked like there was a trace of tears in the deeply ambushed eyes of the 73-year-old Barrow, who for half a century has been one of the strong-arm fighters of baseball.

There was little said of the series itself, but it didn't matter. Here was the spirit of the Yankees. No need to explain why McCarthy picked a particular pitcher for a particular game. He had the right one ready at the right time. No need to explain why Gordon hit .277 in the regular season and .500 in the World Series. The Yankees just always happen to be a little better than their opposition.

It is their spirit, said McCarthy, and though the players may change, the spirit won't. It's something inside—and that's the inside story.

Tech Looks Good, Bad In Terrific Scrimmage

Irish Offense Fools Jackets; Bosch, McHugh View Gruelling Drill in Civilian Clothes.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Football got rougher out at Georgia Tech yesterday as the Jackets clashed with the freshmen and Red Devils in a terrific scrimmage in preparation for their harder clash with Notre Dame Saturday.

They went at it for well over an hour, the varsity executing its own offense against the Red Devils and the freshmen running Frank Leahy's tricky offense at the regulars.

All in all, it was a pretty satisfactory workout, but the Jackets were a bit befuddled at times on defense against Notre Dame's clever offense. However, Coach Bill Alexander would call time, explain to his boys just what they were supposed to do and then let them try it again, usually with much better results.

Much work is still to be done and the Tech coaches are planning another scrimmage today with the emphasis on the defense.

On offense, despite the fact that Johnny Bosch, the team's veteran sparkplug, and Pat McHugh, the promising sophomore wingback, watched in civilian clothes because of injuries, the Techs looked pretty good.

PLASTER RUNS HARD. Ralph Plaster was crashing the line with more power than his 175-pound frame would indicate. Jack Hancock was running nicely from wingback and Davey McDredge contributed his usual share of brilliant broken-field running.

George Webb caught several passes and the blocking of Jack Marshall stood out.

Bosch is taking it easy because of an injured knee and McHugh has a pulled muscle which may keep him on the sidelines Saturday. However, Johnny is sure to play and chances are that McHugh will be in there before the contest is over.

Only other injury in camp is the sprained ankle of Tackle Tom Anderson, but it didn't keep him from the rough work. Otherwise the club is in tip-top condition.

HELMS IS TERROR. Defensive star of the scrimmage was big Jack Helms, the sophomore tackle who time and again reached out across blockers to fling ball carriers to the ground with one sweep of a lanky arm. Elmer Dyke also played well at his left guard position.

Just whom Coach Alex will start against the Irish is not known but fans figure he will put an experienced eleven on the field.

Last week, he started a mixture of second and third-stringers with a couple of regulars thrown in, but is unlikely to repeat the performance.

On the first team in the scrimmage was Webb and Arthur at ends, Sanders and Anderson, tackles, Jordan and Dyke, guards, Wright, center, and Plaster, Kuhn, Hancock and Sheldon in the backfield.

Bob Joneses Lead Teams Thursday

Bob and Colonel Bob Jones will be captains of the competing teams in the annual fall losers pay dinner tournament Thursday at East Lake, Assistant Pro Harold Sargent announced yesterday. The date of the meet has been changed, and Sargent asks all participants to phone their entry in to the golf shop today. Entries will be received as late as Thursday, however.

Matches will be determined in dogfight play. The dinner and entertainment is slated Thursday night.

New Orleans Fans Anxious To See Irish

Former Eagle Coach Definitely Partial to Bowl Games.

By MORTIMER KREGER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—October is a little early to think too seriously about bowl games, but the Sugar Bowl fathers have their eye on an unusually rich assortment of possible selections—including Notre Dame.

Santa Clara, Nebraska, Duke, Fordham, Texas, Mississippi State, Tulane and Marquette are other early season possibilities.

Notre Dame, the country's No. 1 team whether it wins all its games or loses half of them, hasn't played a post-season tilt since the Four Horsemen closed their careers by beating Stanford 27-10 in the Rose Bowl, January 1, 1925.

Since then the idea of a "bowl" game has been unthinkable at South Bend.

But...

LEAHY LIKES BOWLS. This year Frank Leahy became coach of the Fighting Irish, and he likes bowl games. He took his Boston College Eagles to the Cotton Bowl two years ago and brought them here to whip Tennessee last New Year's Day.

The warmth with which New Orleans and the Sugar Bowlers entertained and praised the Eagles, and Leahy in particular, set up a cordial feeling that should make Leahy eternally friendly to the local crowd, and Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl is a dream dear to the heart of many a bowl sponsor.

The opponent could be Tulane, winner of one Sugar Bowl tilt and loser of another, if the Wave keeps on rolling.

Duke and Texas might prefer the Rose Bowl with its glamor, antiquity, 20,000 more cash.

Hope Fading That Sinkwich Can Play Much, If at All, Friday

The Spotlight

By GRANTLAND RICE.

THE TOUGHEST SCHEDULE

In the middle of a World Series melee and medley there were still more than enough ready to start more football arguments than a hundred tongues could settle. These came from football writers collected from every section of the map. One of the favorite debates concerned the toughest football schedule of the year.

My vote goes to Pittsburgh. Here is the Panther hook-up—Purdue, Michigan, Minnesota, Duke, Ohio State, Fordham, Nebraska, Penn State and Carnegie Tech. The last named team is on the off side, but look over those first eight Pittsburgh games.

I can't find another schedule that calls for such opposition as Pitt must meet from Michigan, Minnesota, Duke, Fordham and Nebraska, without calling on the others, which are none too soft.

Another Entry

Considering the material at hand, I'd say a good runner-up would be Dr. Mal Stevens and his group of Violets from N. Y. U. Starting this next Saturday the Violets face Texas A. & M., Syracuse, Holy Cross, Penn State, Missouri, Tulane and Fordham. Tulane and Fordham alone would make a hard schedule for any normal squad.

This menu is entirely too much for the material Mal Stevens has at hand. From now on it would be a fine day's work for N. Y. U. to beat any one of these opposing outfits.

Bowl Scouts Busy

The rush for bowl selections is already warming up, and the rivalry is keener than ever. Eight leading teams are needed for Pasadena, Dallas, New Orleans and Miami, and they all want the best.

The Pacific Coast always has one fixed starter—her own conference champion. But the western delay in waiting for the final game may cause trouble again, as so many leading candidates won't hang around that long with other bowls pressing the issue.

The Texans are hoping to keep their own conference champion hooked to the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, where they can handle over 50,000 spectators at top prices.

The Sugar Bowl, now able to accommodate around 75,000 or more, would like to get the pick of the north and the south for New Orleans—Tulane, Mississippi State or Duke, for example, against a Fordham or a Colgate.

And Miami, with an increasing capacity, is just as keen to keep building up her big winter show.

This means the Rose Bowl committee faces claimants ready to pluck six of the best teams in the field. The Rose Bowl out of $100,000 is a golden lure, but many teams are invited to collect $50,000 or $70,000 don't care to gamble on losing the lesser amounts. Which is simple enough to understand.

Who They May Be

It is entirely too early yet to have any bowl teams line up. The Western Conference and Notre Dame are out. So is Navy and the Ivy League—two years ago Cornell would have been a terrific card.

But the main candidates now, apart from the Pacific Coast Conference, are Duke, Mississippi State, Tulane, Clemson, Texas, Fordham, Colgate, Southern Methodist, Nebraska and Oklahoma. To be beaten once is no bowl bar. Last season Fordham, Texas A. & M., Nebraska and Georgetown—all bowl teams—had each suffered a defeat. Two defeats are usually the eliminating point.

It isn't certain that Duke would take on a bowl visit, unless Wallace Wade changes his mind. The two leading candidates from the north are Fordham and Colgate, which are not likely to be beaten twice, at any rate, and which are almost certain to have fine records.

Mississippi State and Tulane are excellent bowl prospects. They are two of the best. In the southwest the battle is always so bitter that few teams ever finished a spotless season, no matter how good they are. The competition is so keen in that sector that the job of winning them all is nearly always an impossible turn.

As the season progresses bowl scouts will be rambling all over the map in the busiest prebowl campaign the game has yet known. There should be fewer unbeaten teams this fall than last season was able to show.

Bear to Wrestle

Osborne Tonight

Interviewed by newspapermen on the eve of his battle tonight with Dobbie Osborne at Northside Tennis Club, Calamity, the 350-pound brown Canadian bear, simply radiated confidence.

"Grr-r-r, grr-o-w-l-l, dod-g-e-r-r-bums-s-s, cosmic-c-c punch-h-h," exclaimed Calamity, pounding his massive chest.

Calamity's manager explained that his protégé had said: "Sure, I'll beat this Osborne. I'm in the pink. And when youse reporters call me a bear be sure youse spell it right. Don't get me mixed up with this Maxie Baer. I don't claim no relation to dat skittlepoof."

Wrestler, one of the greatest in the world, plays second fiddle to Calamity, meeting Ed (Strangler) White in the semifinals. At 8:30 Bobby Roberts, a new face, engages Rudy Strongberg.

Frankie Weak, Clamped Teeth Hurt Breathing

Butts Won't Say If Ace Will See Action Against Rebels.

By F. M. WILLIAMS. ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 7.—Georgia drilled on defense in the rain tonight as hopes faded for Frankie Sinkwich, sensational tailback, getting into the Mississippi game for any length of time Friday night. Sinkwich was out in sweat clothes, but he couldn't take much exercise, devoting most of his time while on the field to watching men who play the same position as he go through a defensive scrimmage.

A special head gear will give Sinkwich adequate protection for his broken jawbone, but the Bulldog ace is weak after three days on a liquid diet and he hasn't yet accustomed himself to the difficulties of breathing with his teeth clamped together. He's vain to get in the game, however.

Coach Wallace Butts isn't saying whether he'll use Sinkwich or not, but it's a lead-pipe cinch the little Bulldog mentor won't put him in the game unless physicians okay it. If Frankie plays at all it will be in "spots."

TODD KEY MAN. Meanwhile, Jim Todd, who only returned to the squad a week before the South Carolina game, came in for a lot of attention during pass defensive work and a long punting drill.

Todd is the boy who must be ready Friday. Captain Heyward Allen likely will start the game with Ole Miss, but he's a little felled and he can't go 60 minutes. Big Jim is the only other tailback.

The Laurens (S. C.) junior was getting off some nice punts, but he is erratic and the Georgia coaches don't figure their team can make many mistakes and still win against the great aggregation Harry Mehre has collected at Ole Miss.

Georgia losses since spring practice are telling now more than ever. The Bulldogs have lost three men off the first team for various reasons and three others who were rated no worse than second best at their positions.

On top of all that, Sinkwich, who is probably the best football player in the south and one of the top-notchers in the nation, will be only partially effective in the next three games.

NO ALIBIS. But the Georgia coaches aren't alibing. The squad's spirit is tremendous even in the face of a series of breaks that would have most youngsters ready to give it all up.

"We expect to play a good game Friday night," Coach Butts said. "If that's good enough to win we'll be grateful. But if it isn't, then we'll have no excuses."

Bulldog scouts report Mississippi better than last year and they emphasize the fact that Junie Hovious and Merle Hapes have lost none of their effectiveness. Hovious ran one punt 96 yards against Georgia last year and Hapes intercepted a pass and galloped 75. On top of that Hovious threw two touchdown passes as Ole Miss won, 28 to 14.

One of the largest crowds to see a game here in five years is indicated from advance ticket sales. But Johnny Broadnax, who has charge of the ticket office, said today plenty of good seats remain and reserve tickets will be on sale the night of the game.

Kickoff is slated for 8:15 o'clock.

Mehre Drills Rebels

Against Air Attacks.

OXFORD, Miss., Oct. 7.—(P)—Concentrating on Georgia plays, Coach Harry Mehre put his Mississippi University Rebels through a stiff workout under a hot sun today.

Mehre emphasized defense against passing attacks which are expected to be the deciding factor Friday night. Pep Bennett, only veteran quarter, will not see service against the Bulldogs, Mehre said, unless he can move in scrimmage tomorrow. Bennett suffered a side injury when the Rebels lost to Georgetown in the first game of the season.

WALSH RETIRES.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(P)—Tom Walsh, national president of the Professional Golfers' Association the past two years, announced his retirement from that office today. His successor will be elected at the association's annual meeting here Nov. 10-11.

TERRIBLE BLOCKING

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 7.—(P)—Coach Red Sanders took a look at the Tennessee Tech-Vanderbilt game pictures today and decided line blocking in the Saturday tilt was terrible.

Bunky Morris, of Syracuse University not only drop kicks field goals but sometimes he drop-kicks the kickoff. He can get more distance than the place-kickers.

TIME OUT

By Chet Smith

"I ain't goin' on the air—I told ya Mom ain't got no radio!"

Mike Jacobs Escapes Fine Or Suspension

Jenkins, Cochrane, Managers, Trainer Are Punished.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(P)—In a series of drastic actions, the New York State Athletic Commission today took steps to avoid such fight fiascos as the Freddie Cochrane-Lew Jenkins shindig in the Garden last night and frowned heavily on the actions of Lou Nova's handlers in the California heavyweight title bout with Joe Louis last week.

Promoter Mike Jacobs was instructed to hold up Jenkins' purse, amounting to approximately $7,000, as the result of his poor showing against the welterweight titleholder. Jenkins, showing little of the punching ability that carried him to the top of the 135-pounders in this state, was knocked down five times by Cochrane and finally dropped the 10-round decision in a dull fight.

At the same time, the commission ordered Jenkins and his Texas manager, Fred Brovinsky, 135 pounds in this state, to forfeit for Lew's title fight here October 31 with Sammy Angott, the N. B. A. recognized champion. Commissioner Bill Brown also made it clear that hereafter Jenkins would do his training in New York when he is fighting here.

No action was taken against Cochrane, but his manager, Willie Gilsenberg, of Newark, was suspended for six months for interfering with the welter king to hold back in the early rounds. Ray Carlen, manager of Nova, was given the same suspension and Lou's trainer, Ray Arcel, 60 days, for doing the same thing in the Louis fight. Carlen and Arcel also were reprimanded for failure to obey the referee's warning regarding the use of grease on Nova.

John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission, said the actions of Carlen, Arcel and Gilsenberg were "not fair to the public" in explaining the suspensions.

A new rule, passed today, will prevent two champions from meeting in New York in the future unless one of the titles is at stake. The contracts must state clearly which title is at stake, the champion whose crown is not on the block must relinquish his rulership and the fight must be over the championship route of 15 rounds.

Answering Jenkins' statement that he had the best of shape, and that he still was ailing from injuries received in a motorcycle accident three weeks ago, the commission called in three of its doctors. They found Jenkins to be suffering from a bruised rib, suffered in last night's fight, but otherwise in good physical condition.

Irish May Play In Sugar Bowl

tomers and nearby movie studios. But only one can go.

BRONCOS STRONG.

Santa Clara, twice a winner in the Sugar Bowl, lost last season only to Stanford, 7-6. The Broncos are reported to have a better club this year. They don't belong to the Pacific Coast Conference, the champion of which plays in the Rose Bowl and invites an opponent—but they meet four conference members—California, Stanford, Oregon and U. C. L. A. Victories over those four would establish Santa Clara as probably the best team of the far west—and the Sugar Bowl would be simply delighted to have the unofficial champions of the Pacific coast here.

Sugar Bowl officials have not forgotten that Nebraska's Biff Jones, former Louisiana State coach, helped put up a guarantee the Sugar Bowl in its early years. Sooner or late a Mississippi team will play in the bowl—and since Mississippi State looks unstoppable for the rest of its schedule, this must be the year.

A strong team is always welcome, with the prestige and publicity it brings. And Fordham appears one of the best of the east. Marquette is more of a dark horse. But after all, it's only October . . .

Veterans Pace Prep Elevens In Early Tilts

Castleberry, Couch Lead Way; Many New Stars Appear.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS. A Who's Who list of prep stars cavorting on Atlanta's grids this year most assuredly would list some names which never broke into print last year, but veterans of last year's varsity wars would have the call on the newcomers.

Over at Boys' High the veteran scouter, Clint Castleberry, is the biggest reason the Purples click in the tough ones. He was the big gun in the tough Savannah contest, and Shorty Doyal admits he doesn't know how the scampy mite stood up under the beating a big Geechie line gave him.

The Purples, however, have several newcomers who can go rabbit hunting without a gun. Jimmy Gordon tops the list. He has proven himself a fine passer and runner already. Don Paschal and wee Billy Haas both can skip through a broken field like Rastus with a stolen watermelon. Charlie Furchgott, at tackle, is still head defensive man, but Buck Stainton, Ray Smith, Maurice Furchgott, Ben Avery, Phil Alexander are comparatively green linemen who played admirably in the fore-wall that didn't permit Savannah High a single first down.

THAT COUCH BOY. Hang the laurel wreath on Veteran Jack Couch at Tech High. Without his running and kicking the Smithies would have been a prelude to a sad ball club so far. He and Fred King, a really battering guard, and big Joe Nixon, at end, have held the crippled Smithies together.

Tech High Coach Allen Shi never got around to it, but he promised Charles (Jock) Fitzgerald, 137-pound Marist guard, a Smithie jersey since he played in the Smithie backfield all night when they tied the Cadets. Jock and J. R. Dickerson, a fine blocker and punter, who quit this week for a lucrative job, were the veteran Mr. Bigs at Marist.

John (Buddy) Wilson, with four touchdowns against West Fulton, stamped himself as the Commercial High ace, but Russay and Morrison are real defensive standouts who catch the eye at the guard posts.

Albert Fritchie and Cowboy Robinson do about everything two good backs can do for G. M. A. Russell High really has some outstanding cleat-shifters this year. Bo Dempsey and Foster Ratteree are about as good a pair of backs as the town boasts. Dempsey can kick, pass or run, and Ratteree is as elusive as anybody unless it be Castleberry. Robert Moore and Charles Turner are fine pass receivers at the Russell end positions, too, and Harlan Henlee likes the going rough around his tackle post.

PIERCE CAN GO. George (Mad Swede) Olson, and Frank Broyles give Smoky Joe Martin two classy ball-toters at Decatur, and Bo Pierce, at guard, hasn't a peer in the city. Big, mean and fast he also pulls out and carries the ball on a guard-around play.

Dick (Train) Harris, at fullback, and Lustrat Coleman are making North Fulton supporters forget stars of yesteryear, and young Capus Brewer Jr., guard, is a line standout.

Coach V. J. Hansard's tricky spread formations are the talk of the town, and tiny Billy Walraven is the lad who usually stuffs that oval under his wing and goes for the West Fulton yardage. Despite his size he is a triple-threat.

Spurlock is the best of the Fulton High Red Bird backs and Gambrell takes away defensive honors every time the Wills-coached machine goes into action.

ALL IN THE GAME

One said today: "On Duke's showing against Tennessee you can start touting the Blue Devils for the Rose Bowl." That's no nonsense, either.

Unless Georgia Tech can stop the mighty men of Durham, they are almost a cinch to be invited. The west coast needs an outstanding intersectional attraction, after last year, and the west's opponent will be Duke if the Blue Devils go through.

Rally by Gordon Beats Hackett, 1UP

ROME, Ga., Oct. 7.—Going into the final 18 holes five strokes down to Dick Hackett in the annual Coosa Club tournament here this weekend, Jennings Gordon, former state amateur champion, came out with the championship by a one-up victory on the 37th green.

Gordon started out in the final 18 of the championship flight and pulled up on Hackett with a birdie on the ninth. He sank a 30-foot putt for a birdie to tie the match on the 36th and won out on the first extra hole.

Hackett had a 72 for the final round, while the ex-amateur kinsman shot a 67. Hackett teamed up with Dan Yates to go to the finals of the Southern States Four-Ball tournament last week before bowing to Gene Dahlbender and Tommy Barnes.

TIDE BACK HURT.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 7.—(P)—The Alabama football team, already crippled with injuries from the Mississippi State game last Saturday, suffered another setback today when Herman Beard, rugged sophomore fullback, injured a knee in a varsity scrimmage with the freshmen.

Peanut Vendor Tackles Runner

ROME, Ga., Oct. 7.—The score stood 6-0 in favor of the Anniston Negro team against the Rome High Negro team while a peanut vendor rooted vigorously for the home town boys.

Then an Anniston back charging down the field. The peanut vendor couldn't stand the pressure. Tossing aside goobers, he dived over the rail and tackled that Anniston plunger.

Result? The Rome News-Tribune reported the game ended there in a fight.

Newspaper Advertising Draws Recruits, Navy Figures Show

Volunteers Jump From 66 in May to 205 in September in Indianapolis; Increase Continues After Campaign Is Stopped.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(P)—The Navy made public figures today showing how newspaper advertising aided its recruiting campaign for the two-ocean fleet.

In a letter to William A. Thompson, director of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association advertising bureau, Captain F. E. M. Whiting, give the results of the Navy's first advertising campaign. It started in the states of Indiana, Iowa and Missouri, the first ad being placed in the week commencing July 7, and the last in the last week of August.

"Not only did recruiting increase during the period when the advertising was running," Whiting said, "but it has continued to increase after the advertising stopped."

Listing figures for the main recruiting stations in the three states for the past five months, Whiting said that in Indianapolis they jumped from 66 in May to 205 in September. In Des Moines the increase was from 174 to 424 and in St. Louis, it rose from 181 to 419.

The advertising campaign already has been started in 16 states and two others, Michigan and Wisconsin, will be added shortly. In addition to the three original test states, those in which the campaign is now under way are: Kentucky, Kansas, Nebraska, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

Big Majority Favors F. D. R. Policy on Defense

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 7.—As one of many tests of American sentiment toward the war, the American Institute of Public Opinion has asked voters throughout the country at various times in the last few months the question whether they think President Roosevelt is going too far or not far enough in aiding Britain.

Until recent weeks, the Institute test was showing that the number of voters who think Roosevelt has gone too far was almost exactly counterbalanced by the number who said he was not going far enough.

Between these two extremes lay the great bulk of the electorate which was satisfied that his policy with respect to England was proceeding in about the right course.

The latest survey, completed within the past few days, indicates that public opinion and recent administration actions have, on the whole, kept step. However, there has been an increase in the minority saying the President has gone too far. For the first time, the proportion believing this substantially outnumbered those saying he has not gone far enough.

Following are the results of the survey, and a comparison with results when the same question was asked in previous months.

"So far as you personally are concerned, do you think President Roosevelt has gone too far in his policies of helping Britain, or not far enough?"

The number voting "too far" (27 per cent) is closely comparable to the number who, in an Institute survey last week, opposed the President's shoot on sight policy. Twenty-eight per cent were against that policy, while 62 per cent approved and 10 per cent expressed no opinion.

It is clear from today's study that the greatest anxiety over the President's aid to Britain policy—and the greatest disagreement with it—is to be found in the east-central area, comprising the four states, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Following is a sectional analysis of opinion:

	Too Far	About Not Far	Right Enough
New England	27%	55%	18%
Atlantic	34%	51%	15%
East Central	31%	59%	10%
West Central	14%	61%	25%
South	24%	62%	14%
Far West	24%	62%	14%

Ilona Massey To Arrive Here Today for Public Appearance

'Full' Itinerary Planned for Glamorous Hungarian Movie Actress; Keys of City Will Be Presented Her by Councilman.

Ilona Massey, glamorous Hungarian movie star who, to use an old-fashioned word, has got plenty of "it," will fly into Atlanta this afternoon with her husband to make a series of public appearances ranging from the theater stage to the Naval Reserve air base at Chamblee.

She's coming as a sort of advance agent for her newest starring picture "International Lady," and her bosses, United Artists, want her to become better acquainted with the country she is soon to adopt as her own by way of naturalization. People who saw her exotic beauty in "Balalaika" will want to see her in the flesh, so here's her itinerary:

Miss Massey (in private life Mrs. Alan Curtis) will arrive at Candler field at 1:55 o'clock this afternoon and will be met by Councilman Howard Haire, representing Mayor LeCraw, who will donate her a set of keys to the city. Behind a police escort, she will ride into town via Mitchell and Whitehall streets and thence up Peachtree to the Henry Grady hotel.

At 3:30 o'clock she will drop in on the Naval Reserve air base as guest of Commander Ward Harrison and will watch the cadets do a competitive drill or so. Miss Massey herself will award the prizes to the winning cadets.

From 6:30 to 8 o'clock she will give a cocktail party at the Henry Grady for the press and promptly at 9 o'clock tonight she and her husband will make a personal appearance on the stage of Loew's Grand theater.

And for the benefit of those who won't be any of these places but will be at home Miss Massey will do a radio broadcast at 10:45 o'clock tonight over WGST.

She will leave for Washington early tomorrow morning.

Empire Room Fall Season Opens Tonight

Ken Harris' 'Tone Style' Music Featured at Biltmore.

The fall season in the Empire room of the Biltmore hotel begins tonight with Ken Harris and his "Tone Style" music in full charge. Harris' orchestra is unique in that it makes use of new electrical instruments which make the orchestra sound like a seven-piece band for one number while for the next it may swell to a 15-instrument aggregation.

Handsome and personable, Harris has made a hit with his audiences and dancers in the east and south. He directs the band from the keyboards of his electric piano, which is one of the latest innovations in the dance orchestra field. The Empire room will be open each night except Sunday, with dinner-dance and supper music. There is no cover charge.

Duke and Duchess Plan Tuskegee Institute Visit

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(A)—Because of his interest in Negro education in the Bahamas, where he is governor, the Duke of Windsor and his American-born Duchess will visit the Tuskegee Institute at Tuskegee, Ala., en route back to Nassau probably October 22 or 23.

The Duke and Duchess, who have been at his ranch near Calgary, Canada, are expected to reach Baltimore Saturday, where they will spend from five to six days as guests of the Duchess' uncle, General Henry M. Warfield. They will be in New York at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel for the next six days and then will head for Nassau, via Tuskegee.

Ships Jam Canal After Huge Bridge Snaps Under Train

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Wrecking crews and Army engineers worked feverishly tonight to restore the flow of defense-vital iron ore through the St. Mary's Falls canal, whose main channels had been blocked since early morning by the collapse of a lift bridge said to be one of the longest of the bascule type in the world.

Authorities estimated that by midnight tomorrow 130 vessels would be forced either to drop anchor and wait for the wreckage to be cleared away or to remove parts of their cargo.

Ruins of the bridge and of a Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic freight locomotive and tender in which two trainmen plunged to their deaths choked the 280-foot approach to the two principal locks, leaving only one auxiliary lock for shallow-draft vessels open to navigation on the American side of the St. Mary's river rapids.

The giant span, owned by the Canadian Pacific Railroad Co., sagged beneath the weight of the freight train carrying a heavy load of Canadian pulpwood, paper and steel rails.

By mid-afternoon, 30 vessels had been forced to drop anchor above the locks because their cargoes—principally of iron ore destined for the smelters of defense industries—forced their water lines lower than the draft of 16 feet six inches which the remaining American lock and the small canal on the Canadian side of the rapids could accommodate.

Another eight vessels carrying coal to Lake Superior ports tied up below the locks, although the facilities afforded passage for most upbound craft, which customarily travel with light cargoes.

Military authorities estimated that it would take four days to clear away the wreckage.

Authorities of the Sault Ste. Marie military district charged with guarding the locks began an immediate investigation of the cause of the mishap. Colonel Fred T. Cruse, commander of the area, discounted the possibility of sabotage.

U. S. Sabotage Long Planned, Metcalfe Says

Former Dies Investigator Relates Bund Activity In Talk Here.

Sabotage activities in the United States are not just incidents cooked up overnight, but represent years of planning, John Metcalfe, former investigator for the Dies committee, said last night in a speech delivered at The Temple under the auspices of Gate City Lodge, B'nai B'rith.

He said that the FBI launched an investigation on sabotage plans in this country as early as 1933, but did not take any action in view of the fact that no overt acts had been committed, and the FBI was endeavoring to get evidence against all those involved in the plans.

In 1935, Metcalfe said, the program of the Nazis underwent a radical change as they organized the German-American Bund and worked out a program on the "Trojan horse" type.

"In 1937, for the purpose of learning all I could about these activities, I became a member of the Bund," Metcalfe said. "I attended meetings and heard speeches, and wherever possible, I made copies of these speeches."

After about six months in the Bund, Metcalfe said, he became a more trusted member of the organization, and was invited to join the Bund's military organization.

"We marched and drilled behind closed and locked doors," he said, "received all our commands in German and all received orders to be in Berlin by August, 1939. As a result of that order, it was obvious that the war would break out early in September. As plans developed, the Bund marked off the United States into districts, and a fuhrer for each district was named."

"I made a copy of a speech by Herman Schwartzman, fuhrer of the Astoria, New York, post of the Bund. In that speech, he said: 'The day of trouble is not far off. When that day comes we will have lots of new-found friends. Blood will then flow in the streets of America, and each of you will have to be a fuhrer, and take charge.'"

Fulton's State Defense Corps Is Given Flags

Units Are Well Organized Now, Commander Fling Says.

"The Fulton County State Defense Corps is now so well organized that within an hour by telephone calls we can assemble a thousand men at any spot ready for duty," Major Frank Fling, commander of the Fulton county corps, said last night at the presentation of national and state flags to the units by the Buckhead Elks Lodge.

The presentation ceremony was held in front of the Elks' Home on Peachtree road. Units assembled in the Buckhead business district and marched to the home. The flags were accepted by Major Fling, who in turn presented them to Unit No. 175, designated as color company for the Fulton county regiment.

Judge John M. McClelland, grand exalted ruler of the Elks of America, in his address said: "The greeting of every Elk in the United States this year is 'Hello American.' The cornerstone of patriotism furnishes the basis of the Elk activities during these troublesome times."

Edwin M. Pearce, exalted ruler of Buckhead Elks, in his presentation speech, said: "This meeting tonight is a symbol of the rapidly growing unification and singleness of purpose of the American people."

Units participating were No. 79 under command of Lieutenant J. H. Harris, No. 164 under command of Lieutenant Cap. Joyner, and Unit No. 175 under command of Lieutenant Ralph M. Braswell.

U.S. To Borrow $1,300,000,000 In Single Day

Largest Single Financing Operation Since World War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—In the biggest single borrowing operation since the World War, the Treasury arranged today to borrow $1,300,000,000 in cash on Thursday.

Secretary Morgenthau announced that $1,200,000,000 of long-term bonds would be sold to banks, insurance companies and other large investors. Government trust funds will buy the remaining $100,000,000.

The big borrowing, which will supplement the sale of defense bonds and new taxes, is designed to meet the growing cost of defense. Defense costs now are running more than $1,300,000,000 a month, and with other government costs are causing deficits above taxes of more than $1,000,000,000 a month.

Details of the new bonds were withheld until Thursday. The Treasury said, however, that in addition to the sale of bonds for cash, similar securities will be issued to refund $204,425,400 of 1 1/4 per cent Treasury notes due December 15.

The cash sales will boost the federal debt to a new record high of about $32,700,000,000. The statutory limit is $65,000,000,000.

Thomas H. Bryson Dies; Veteran Laundry Man

Thomas H. Bryson, veteran Atlanta laundry employee, died last night at the residence, 360 Josephine street, N. E.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. C. M. Causey; a son, T. C. Bryson; two brothers, Judge Joseph E. Bryson, of Augusta, and Robert H. Bryson, and two sisters, Mrs. Eugene R. Beall and Mrs. Hampton Hankinson.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Henry M. Blanchard.

FLAG PRESENTATION—This was the scene last night in front of the Buckhead Lodge of Elks Home as national and state flags were presented to the Fulton County State Defense Corps. Left to right are Major Frank Fling, commander of the Fulton corps; Judge John S. McClelland, grand exalted ruler of the Elks of America, and Edwin M. Pearce, exalted ruler of the Buckhead lodge. Fling said the corps is well organized.

F. D. R.'s Day

By LEE CARSON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(INS). No Decision: Pulling into the White House at 8:30 a. m., the President hastily downed some breakfast, powdered with his immediate staff and sat back to receive majority and minority government leaders, led figuratively and literally by Secretary of State Hull. For two and a half hours the President and Secretary Hull on one side and Senators Connally, Barkley, George, McNary, Austin and Congressmen Bloom, Easton and Johnson on the other—kicked the ball back and forth on revision of the neutrality act. Results: Adjournment and no decision with talk resumed tomorrow. The President picked up his papers and went over to his office.

Guess Who and What: As today was a day of lengthy, dynamic meetings of the presidential office what went on before, during and after lunch, supplied stoking for wildfire rumors, speculation and plain guessing. Admiral Stark came openly enough to lunch with the President, a la desk. Sometime later Secretary of the Navy Knox joined them. Harry Hopkins followed. Two hours later the conference was still steaming busily away. Shortly after 4 o'clock the correspondents piled up against the outer office door, waiting, and an official reported that the crowd awaited impatiently without. The conference broke up. No one unbuttoned so much as a comment on the weather on exiting.

Georgia Projects Given Approval

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Presidential approval of 79 defense public works projects, to cost $8,283,319, was announced today by John M. Carmody, Federal Works administrator.

Among them were 25 projects for maintenance and operation of schools, to which the government will contribute the total cost.

These are the first non-construction projects approved by the President under the defense public works program.

Among the approved funds for the 25 school operation projects were: Muscogee county, Georgia, county board of education, $36,000; Savannah, Ga., city board of education, $38,416; Benning, Ga., Chattahoochee county board of education, $18,000.

Among the construction projects were: Macon, Ga., recreational facilities, federal construction, $50,000.

Fred Kennedy Named Head Of Kiwanians

Atlanta Selected for 1942 Session at Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Georgia Kiwanians elected Fred Kennedy, of Augusta, district governor, and chose Atlanta for next year's convention in the last day of their convention here today.

G. Maynard Smith, of Cairo, was named district treasurer and Kennedy announced the appointment of W. F. Law Jr., of Augusta, as district secretary.

Lieutenant governors of nine state divisions were elected as follows: First, Alvin O. Sone, of Cedar-town; second, L. M. Bradford, of Manchester; third, Tom M. Cordell, of Tifton; fourth, Rufus Sanderson, of Jesup; fifth, W. R. Turner, of Cordele; sixth, John R. Phillips, of Louisville; seventh, Charles J. Thurmond, of Gainesville; eighth, Robert H. Humphrey, of Swainsboro; ninth, G. M. Redmond, of Jackson.

All new officers' terms begin January 1.

Football Classic To Attract Many Visitors to Atlanta

By SALLY FORTL

THE ANNUAL FOOTBALL game between Tech and Notre Dame University, to be played at Grant Field on Saturday, will prove the lodestar attracting numerous important visitors to the city for the weekend. Foremost among the group is Mrs. Percy Perkins, of Memphis, Tenn., who arrives Friday morning to visit Dr. and Mrs. Lon Grove on Habersham road. Mrs. Perkins is the former Jessie Latham, of Memphis, her friendship with Dorothy Grove having been "engineered" through the latter's brother, Bob Haverly, who lives in Memphis.

Dorothy and Mrs. Perkins have not seen each other in several years, so they plan to spend Friday catching up on the news, so to speak. Of course they will attend the game on Saturday, and afterwards the Groves will entertain informally at cocktails in honor of their attractive guest. Mrs. Perkins is the mother of a lovely young daughter, Frances, and it is a matter of keen regret to Dorothy that Frances cannot accompany her mother to Atlanta, for she is the same age as Frances Grove, younger daughter of the Grove household. The two girls are bound to inherit a warm friendship, once they have met.

Other distinguished visitors arriving Friday from Louisville, Ky., for the exciting gridiron classic are Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Curran, who will be weekend guests of Dr. and Mrs. Dan Elkin at their home on Penn avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Curran, who recall, have been hosts to the Elkins when they journeyed to Louisville to attend the famous Kentucky Derby, and a close friendship exists between the four.

Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Atkins will entertain at a small dinner party on Friday evening at their home on Woodward way honoring the visitors, and on Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Curran will be guests of honor at the dinner party at which Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Roger Williams will be hosts at their Peachtree Battle avenue residence.

Debutante C. C. Proctor will act as hostess to her cousin, Elizabeth Johnson, and Bernice Lawson, both of Knoxville, Tenn., for the tilt between the Yellow Jackets and the Fighting Irish. Elizabeth and Bernice arrive on Friday evening to spend the weekend at the E. B. Proctor residence.

Among Chattanooga belles who will be enthusiastic gridiron spectators on Saturday are Rita Clay and Ann Mills. Rita was one of the Chattanooga debs presented at the annual Coty Ball in that city last weekend, while Ann is a student at the University of Chattanooga.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Dutton will entertain Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Rumbaugh, of Miami, Fla., who arrive on Friday evening at the Dutton residence on Seventeenth street. The popular Floridians will receive an enthusiastic welcome here, for they have often visited the Duttons.

At the dinner-dance on Saturday evening at the Piedmont Driving Club, a group of Atlanta belles will entertain for a "delegation" in the service of Uncle Sam stationed at Pensacola, Fla. The hostesses for the occasion will be Peggy Dutton, Rolline Adair, Virginia Dunney, Emmakate Vreman, Lillian Klein, and Virginia Merryman. The honor guests will be Ensign Allen Wilcox, Ensign Bud Burnett, Lieutenant Kirk Van Derhaden, and Lieutenant Gay Thrash.

Columbus will be more than well represented by Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Turner and their two lovely daughters, Sarah Louise and Betty, who will spend the weekend here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Thompson. Sarah Louise, you know, is making her debut in Columbus this year and is the attractive pivot for a whirl of social gaudies. Following the game, she and her sister will attend the Chi Phi ten-dance at the Tech chapter house as the guests of Jimmy Porter. Saturday evening the visiting quartet will be honored by Mr. and Mrs. Thompson at a dinner party at the Piedmont Driving Club.

A number of visiting directors of the Associated Mutuals will be in attendance at Saturday's game, and that evening they will be honor guests at the dinner to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Hitt at the Driving Club.

THE SMITHS and the Joneses are in a quandary! And rightly so. Here is the reason why:

Next Saturday evening Peggy Jones (of the Jones family of Canton) will become the bride of Richter Smith Jr. (of the Smith family of Concord), thus becoming Peggy Smith. Now it so happens that Richter has a sister, Peggy Smith, who is a senior at Stephens College. So his mother, Mrs. Richter Smith Sr., wrote Peggy's mother, Mrs. Louis Jones Sr., and asked her to suggest some way to distinguish between the two Peggys. Mrs. Jones' reply came back: "I wish I could help you solve your problem. My son, Louis Jr., married Peggy Hendrix, so we likewise have two Peggys in our family. And we are still wondering how to distinguish between them."

Next Saturday's bride has received many beautiful wedding presents, among which is a beautiful silver service of the Edward VII pattern, the gift of Richter's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Burckhardt. The service matches her flat silver presented her by her parents.

Mrs. George H. Porter, president of the Inman Park Woman's Club, will give the welcoming address at the meeting of the fifth district, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held this morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Inman Park Baptist church. The Inman Park Woman's Club will be official hostess, and luncheon will be served at 10 o'clock.

It is a matter of keenest delight to their host of Atlanta friends that Richter and Peggy will live here. Upon their return from their honeymoon, they will move immediately into their apartment in the St. Andrews, which is already furnished and ready for them.

WHEN THE ULUA sailed from Panama recently, among its passengers were Sarah Lewis Wight; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Lewis, and her grandmother, Mrs. Thomas H. Morgan, who arrived here a few days ago after a visit with Lieutenant Morgan Lewis, U. S. A., now stationed in Ancon.

A most impressive farewell was given the prominent Atlantans as the boat sailed, for Sarah's brother, Morgan, and his friend, Lieutenant Doc Campbell, circled the ship in their plane again and again, vigorously waving good-bye.

While in Panama Sarah spent the day with Betty McConnell (Mrs. Walden) Woodward, a former Atlantan, and the duo enjoyed luncheon as guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Arias at their picturesque ranch. The delicious meal featured native foods and fruits and won Sarah's and Betty's instant approval.

Docking in New Orleans, the Atlantans were met by Sarah's husband, Ward Wight Jr., who accompanied them to this city.

Fulton P-T. Council To Meet Today.

"Nutrition" will be the theme of the Fulton County Council P-T. A. at the meeting at Rich's Tea Room today at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Dan Plaster, the council president, will preside. She will introduce Mrs. Sarah Brown, who will speak on "Nutrition, and the Use of School Commodities as Allowed by the Federal Government."

Mrs. Perrin Nicolson Jr. will announce Red Cross classes to be organized for defense purposes. Reports will be given of the recent schools of instruction, when 223 attended; and the 8th District Conference, held at Ellenwood, when 34 schools and 114 persons were in attendance.

Presiding the council meeting, the presidents' club luncheon, Mrs. E. E. Tatum, president, presiding, will be held at 12:30 o'clock in the tea room.

Other officers will be chosen from the new members.

Kitchen Shower And Luncheon Honor Bride

Shower gifts heaped in the center of the table and enclosed by a miniature fence made of clothesline formed the novel table decoration at the luncheon and kitchen shower given yesterday by Mrs. Richard Tomlin and her mother, Mrs. George Ripley.

The affair complimented Mrs. Robert M. Noell, who was before her recent marriage Miss Peggy Price, and took place at Mrs. Ripley's home on Club drive.

Mrs. Dave Prince and Mrs. S. S. Tomlin assisted the hostesses in receiving.

Invited were the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. Lester Price, and Miss Louise McKie, Miss Andy Dumas and Mesdames Ward Wight Jr., Haines Hargrett, William Brooks, Robert Hall, Lawrence Benedict, K. Barnwell Dudley, Jack Rennie, George Home Jr., Joe Hutchison, S. S. Tomlin and Dave Prince.

Miss Anne Garrett To Honor Misses Brownlee and Newton

Miss Keeler Newton, of Forsyth, one of the season's most popular debutantes, and Miss Mary Jo Brownlee, whose marriage to Dr. Harry Crosswell will take place on October 17, will share honors on Thursday when Miss Anne Garrett entertains at a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Miss Garrett, popular member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority at the University of Georgia, arrives today to remain in the city through Thursday.

The party will assemble 45 guests including members of this season's Debutante Club and last year's club, of which Miss Garrett was one of the loveliest members, as well as Miss Brownlee's wedding attendants.

Harvest colors of gold and brown will be placed in a private dining room of the club. Miss Brownlee was central figure yesterday at the luncheon and surprise shower given by Miss Helen Randall at the Piedmont Driving Club. The table was centered with an artistic arrangement of white and red fall flowers. The guests' places were marked by white cards bearing silver and red monograms.

Mrs. Luther Randall assisted her daughter in entertaining the guests, who included Mrs. W. M. Brownlee, mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. Harry Marshall Crosswell, mother of the groom-to-be, and Miss Brownlee's wedding attendants.

A. A. U. W. To Meet.

The evening group of the American Association of University Women, Mrs. Charles Lorida, chairman, meets on Friday evening, at 8 o'clock at the home of Judge and Mrs. Augustus M. Roan, 991 Oakdale road. Judge Roan, who is judge of the civil court of DeKalb county and president of the Druid Hills Civic Club, will speak on "Citizenship for Defense."

Baked Sea Food Salad Is Served Piping Hot

By Sally Saver.

Baked seafood salad here is served in a starfish-shaped individual casserole.

Many are the delicious dishes that come out of the sea! That's why good cooks and chefs often go down to the sea for a cooking inspiration. And, in addition to their variety and goodness, sea-foods are rich in certain important minerals, notably iodine and phosphorus, which is reason why fish of some kind should be eaten at least once a week. The recipe offered today is somewhat unusual; it is a hot salad, to be served piping hot in individual shells or casseroles. It makes a good and pretty luncheon main dish.

Baked Sea Food Salad.

$\frac{1}{2}$  cup chopped green pepper
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup minced onion
 1 cup chopped celery
 1 cup canned or cooked flaked crab meat
 1 cup cooked shrimp
 1 cup mayonnaise
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 2 cups corn flakes
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup butter or margarine.

Paprika.
 Combine green pepper, onion, celery, crab meat, shrimp, mayonnaise, salt and Worcestershire sauce. Mix well. Place the mixture in individual shells or shallow baking dish. Cover with crushed corn flakes, dot with butter or margarine and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees, about 30 minutes. Serve with slices or wedges of lemon. Make six to eight servings.

Luncheon Salad Plate.

Baked Sea Food Salad
 Pineapple and cucumber molded in last gelatin.
 Tomato stuffed with coleslaw.
 Pear half sprinkled with sharp cheese.
 Serve with small cheese biscuits or small hot rolls.

Questions about foods, recipes, cooking and serving will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution, or Walnut 6565.

Young dry skins as well as older ones need a rich night cream to replenish the oils. Jane Wyman, Warner Bros. star, smooths in a rich, nourishing cream before retiring.

Repair Ravages of Summer With Specially-Priced Cream

By Winifred Ware.

At the turn of the season skin deficiencies become apparent. Skins that have been dried by summer sun, wind and neglect have to turn right around and face the harshness of cold and winter winds. For just a short time we have an interlude of mild weather in which we can catch up on repair work and get ourselves in condition to face the winter hardships.

"It's a lucky break to find a special price on a cream which is good for the after-summer skin ailments. I'm particularly pleased because this is one of my favorite creams. It's a night cream, a lubricating and soothing cream for dry skins. It contains emollient oils which help prevent lines, help keep the skin smooth. It's fine for young dry skins, but essential to older skins to retard lines."

There's something unusual about this night cream. It's texture and action seem different from other such creams. It's a much lighter, fluffier consistency, and because of this it seems to be absorbed by the skin in a sponge-like fashion, soaking well into the most delicate tissues.

The cream is applied after the skin has been cleansed and toned. It should be patted well into the skin. The surplus which isn't absorbed may be blotted off. The rest should be left on over night.

This special price is effective for the rest of this week. It means considerable saving, too, for the regular $2.25 jar is being sold at $1.15 less than half price. If you want to know what it is and where you can get it call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565 or write her in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Lillian Mae.

Pattern 4904.
 On the "must-list" for the younger set—the Princess Model! Pattern 4904 by Lillian Mae has the smooth princess lines so flattering to young figures. The two center panels in the front are cut on the bias—very effective when striped fabric is used. There's a straight, top-stitched yoke that buttons cleverly in front, an optional round little collar. Little sleeve tabs are button-trimmed to match, if you like. You might make these tabs and all four panels in the front of a different shade for attractive color contrast, and omit the collar. Both versions open at the back and may have long sleeves. So charming and simple a pattern would be appropriate either for school or party wear, depending on the fabric you choose. Order it today for sewing success!

Pattern 4904 is available in girls' sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 takes 3-4 yards 35-inch fabric. Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly name, address and style number.

Tyrone Power Wins Most Colorful Role Since "Farewell to Arms"

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7.—(INS)—When I heard that 20th Century-Fox had called off plans to produce "This Above All" (Eric Knight's best seller) in England and Anatole Litvak was to direct it here in Hollywood, I knew there would be some casting surprises. Robert Donat and Leslie Howard had both been mentioned for the soldier role, but now that the picture will be produced in Hollywood, Tyrone Power comes up as the winner of the most colorful character since Gary Cooper made "Farewell to Arms." Ty might have stepped right out of the pages of the book, he so closely resembles Knight's description of the moody, romantic young Britisher on leave.

No one from Darryl Zanuck, the head man, to the studio gatekeeper, will admit it—but I hear Joan Fontaine is very much in the running for Prudence, the English girl who takes a romantic holiday again with word that Marlene Dietrich wears $375,000 worth of jewelry in "The Lady Is Willing." Garbo's "jools" were quoted at a quarter of a million in "The Twins"; Mrs. Broderick Crawford expects her baby any day; and Brod, who is on location at Big Bear, spends every possible moment on the telephone; Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon will be personally escorted through the Lockheed plant by John Beach, good-looking young executive; Jackie Cooper and Bonita Granville, Mischa Auer, Frank Morgan and Jack Oakie at the Brown Derby all in one evening, gave the tourists their money's worth; Marshall Duffield, Dorothy Lee's ex, at the Seven Seas with Donna McGuire—a very pretty socialite; Fritz Lang, who has been so ill, has been reading plays and wants to direct a Broadway show; the can can dance in "Lady For a Night" has been postponed until the end of the picture so Joan Blondell can get her strength back after two weeks in the hospital. That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

French playwright, that she wants "Rose Burke," his first play written in English. Bernstein, who is now 64 years old, has been working quietly here, and he was elated beyond words when Cornell announced her intention of starring in his drama. Most of the Cornell vehicles find their way eventually into movies, so I suppose some day we shall be seeing "Rose Burke" on the screen.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Humphrey Bogart has been very sick with a strep throat; Phyllis Ruth's mother will wed Charles Crenshaw Jr. Her name is Marilyn Ruth and she is not yet 40; several Hollywood movies have been sent to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor at High River, Alberta; Ruth Hussey is working hard to try to spend Christmas with her family in Rhode Island. She hasn't been home in two years; the Garbo-Dietrich rivalry breaks out again with word that Marlene Dietrich wears $375,000 worth of jewelry in "The Lady Is Willing." Garbo's "jools" were quoted at a quarter of a million in "The Twins"; Mrs. Broderick Crawford expects her baby any day; and Brod, who is on location at Big Bear, spends every possible moment on the telephone; Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon will be personally escorted through the Lockheed plant by John Beach, good-looking young executive; Jackie Cooper and Bonita Granville, Mischa Auer, Frank Morgan and Jack Oakie at the Brown Derby all in one evening, gave the tourists their money's worth; Marshall Duffield, Dorothy Lee's ex, at the Seven Seas with Donna McGuire—a very pretty socialite; Fritz Lang, who has been so ill, has been reading plays and wants to direct a Broadway show; the can can dance in "Lady For a Night" has been postponed until the end of the picture so Joan Blondell can get her strength back after two weeks in the hospital. That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Keep Up on Your Vitamins To Ward Off Weak Nerves

By Dr. William Brady.

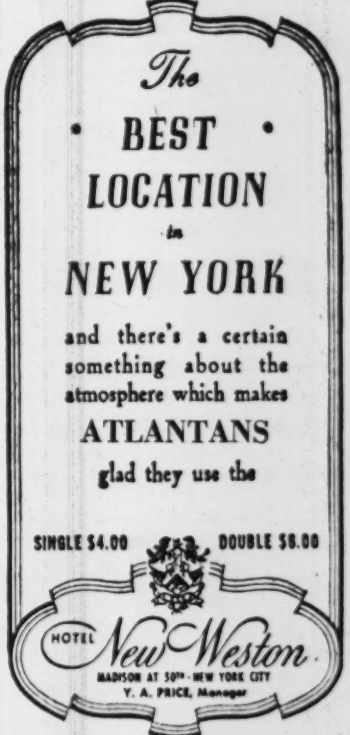

From an authoritative medical textbook published as recently as 1939 I quote the following description of "neurasthenia," which in plain English means nervous weakness or weak nerves—but I warn Class B neurotics and reassured Class A neurotics that nervous exhaustion or nervous breakdown is valid only for deceiving the public or the victim in any instance.

"Neurasthenia—... characterized by lack of energy, easy mental and physical fatigability, mild fasto-intestinal disturbances, poverty of power of concentration, pressure on top of head and in back, feeling a tight band about the head, and all direct result, according to Freud."

Although neurologists (nerve specialists) such as the author of the neurology textbook from which I quote, still have the tendency to speak of "neurasthenia" as though it were an honest, valid diagnosis of what ails the patient, medical authorities or writers and readers of popular magazines who are honest now frankly call such symptoms merely "neurasthenic syndrome" or "neurasthenic symptom-complex," and so imply or acknowledge that the cause of the symptoms is to be determined by the physician in each individual instance. In other words only quacks now pretend that "neurasthenia" is an explanation for any impairment of health or a condition amenable to treatment without diagnosis.

The very notion of "nerve energy," founded as it is on total ignorance and disregard of physiology, leads to much misunderstanding and unwarranted anxiety or worry about the imaginary danger or risk of "nervous exhaustion" and "nervous breakdown."

Here is a fundamental fact which challenges contradiction by any physician or specialist of standing in the profession: There is no such thing as "nerve energy" apart from ordinary energy, muscular energy, and as long as there is enough energy to enable one to move the muscles or enough to keep one warm, there need be no fear of lack of energy to carry on every function of nerves and brain. Indeed, so little energy, energy of any kind recognized or measured

Modern Dentistry Promises Increase in Perfect Smiles

By Ida Jean Kain.

Proof of the genius of modern dentistry is a New York model's smile. It used to be that she scarcely ever smiled because of two sharp peg teeth on either side of her front ones—and now she poses for toothpaste ads.

Looking further into this subject of today's dental miracles, I find that her case is not unusual. I had wondered whether all the movie stars were born with beautiful teeth. They are the only kind that are ever flashed on the screen! But I learn the perfection is often due to porcelain jacket crowns.

I asked one of the leading New York dentists and cosmetologists to tell me more about the crowns and the type of dentistry involved. He says that your own tooth is painlessly prepared for the crown and remains vital wherever possible. The jacket crown is constructed of a thin veneer of porcelain which is fitted over the defective teeth. Of course, the jacket must be designed and processed for each individual tooth. It isn't a "store tooth" job.

It seems there is almost no dental condition which cannot be improved. The jacket crowns for the two front teeth can cleverly conceal a gap and it is very easy to conceal a dark tooth. Missing front teeth can be replaced and uneven teeth can be straightened.

Moreover, these sets are so efficient that they are equal to tackling corn-on-the-cob. You don't whistle when you talk and you are not discomforted by having your teeth slip around. If you are unhappy about your current set of false teeth, and can afford to do so, you might visit a modern dentist and have them brought up to date. There is a new plastic material which so closely matches the tissues that you will forget it isn't natural.

Personally, I intend to make sure of keeping my teeth as long as possible and shall get daily: One pint of milk for my calcium, citrus fruits for vitamin C, greens and dairy products for vitamin A, and vitamin B in capsule form in winter.

But it would pay anyone with bothersome defects to investigate this new form of cosmetology. Our authority stressed this more than anything else: The people with nice teeth smile more often because they are happier, hence more popular. They do a better job of living!

Charts Teach Touch Typing At Home

You may think you can get by in an office job without learning to type really well. But what a sad disappointment is in store! From the very moment when you write your application, many jobs require you to do typing tasks and do them well.

Fortunately, you can teach yourself! A helpful keyboard chart quickly gets you started on the touch system—the system that all professional typists use for maximum speed and accuracy. When fingers are trained to reach keys without fumbling there need be no crossed-out or written-in words in your work! Speed develops naturally with exercises; regular practice—and you soon zip along.

Just know a few rules and you won't make boners. For instance, when you type the inside addresses, either place commas at the end of all lines except the last, where you use a period, or omit punctuation at ends of lines. After the salutation "Dear Sir," use a colon, not semicolon. If you use "block style," all lines begin at the left margin and you don't indent for paragraphs. Be sure to space twice after a period, too!

Broken Dates Give Girl Fair Warning

By DIXIE GEORGE.

Dear Dixie:
 I have been going with a boy for almost a year and love him very much and he says he loves me. We have planned to marry, but for the past month he has broken a great many dates with me. Do you think he is dating some one else, or is he getting disinterested? We have been going together too long for him to be trying me out. What is your opinion?

E. J.

He broke the dates with you because he did not want to have them, and there is no use trying to look at the situation in any other light. People do not break dates unless there is a reason. Sometimes it is unavoidable, but when it becomes a regular occurrence then you had better be on the defensive. There is no way in the world for me to know if he is dating other girls. You admit that he is not trying to fool you, so the only thing you can do is to just watch his future actions. I think you had better be a bit wary about any marriage plans unless he changes his actions.

STOP TEASING BY IGNORING IT

Dear Dixie:

J. D. and I are engaged. Before he gave me the ring he asked both mother's and father's approval. They had no objection. Here is my problem: Mother does not seem to take our engagement seriously and makes teasing remarks when I mention it. I am 17, have finished high school, and am now working. Do you think she should tease me? J. D. and I have been going together for more than a year and there has never been one word of disapproval. What can I do to let people know that we are serious? Do they do this because I do not like to be teased?

WONDERING.

As long as you and J. D. take yourselves seriously, I would not worry about what other people think of the engagement. After all, it is none of their business and should make no difference to either of you. Perhaps they do tease you because they see that teasing worries you, so the thing to do is to ignore it. You might tell your mother that you and J. D. are serious and ask her to please consider it in that light. If she continues to take it so lightly, the only thing you can do is to make no mention of your engagement but go on with your work and your plans. When you and J. D. set the date, she will probably take note. So, if you and J. D. are taking the engagement seriously, the opinion of others does not matter.

Love Will Come Again

Curt De Witt Attends the Audition, Tells Gay That He Wants To Marry April

By Alma Sioux Scarberry.

SYNOPSIS. April and Curt Hillier came to a parting of the ways after six years of married life. They are very much in love but Curt, who is known to April and her friends, refuses to settle down and go to work. He spends most of his time playing golf and living on the reputation he earned as amateur golf champion for two years. Even after most of his money is gone, he thinks it is all right for April to bolster their dwindling income by giving voice lessons in the Hillier-Lorraine School of Music and Dancing, which she has started with her lifelong friend and companion, Gay Lorraine. She route home from the school, April meets Curt De Witt, a wealthy steel magnate. He sympathizes with April and relieves her mind during the plane ride by telling her of his own unfortunate marriage. Under the terms of her divorce, April gets custody of Curt's son, who is a young daughter. When Curt and April step out of the plane at La Guardia field they meet Hillier. He has been drinking and is angry at April for leaving him. After the brief exchange with April, he leaves in a huff. The next morning she receives a letter from Curt, who has been thinking of her since the divorce. During April's absence in Reno, Curt, who is now a widower, has left a broken heart and engagement to Pat Hastings, a young lawyer, and come back to live with his mother. April is very much upset by April's divorce and has decided to make her own way in New York City. After the brief exchange with April, he leaves in a huff. The next morning she receives a letter from Curt, who has been thinking of her since the divorce. During April's absence in Reno, Curt, who is now a widower, has left a broken heart and engagement to Pat Hastings, a young lawyer, and come back to live with his mother. April is very much upset by April's divorce and has decided to make her own way in New York City.

INSTALLMENT X. Gay felt Curt's tenseness when April walked to the microphone as the announcer began his commercial announcement. She knew how desperately he wanted April to succeed as a singer on the radio. Dear Curt, who had been such a good friend to April through the months since her divorce, and who Gay felt certain loved her dearly.

And then April began to sing. There was a small orchestra that played softly and her lovely contralto was heard in "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." After the first number Curt relaxed and turned to Gay with a smile.

"She has a magnificent voice," he sighed with relief. "I'm sure she'll be a success."

"Of course she will," Gay smiled back at him. "I never doubted it. She's got everything."

"Everything," Curt echoed. "Beauty, brains, a fine mind." "She's the most wonderful person I have ever known," said Gay gravely. "She deserves a great deal more than life has given her so far."

"I'd like to give it to her," Curt De Witt said almost under his breath.

"You have my blessing," Gay smiled at him. "I'm sure you will."

"Thanks," Curt smiled back at her. "That helps a lot. Do you think I have a chance, Gay?"

"I hope so," Gay sighed. "April has always been a one-man woman. But I'm sure she's very fond of you." She reached over and patted his hand. "Why don't you ask her and see? I'll do everything I can to play Cupid."

"You're a grand girl," Curt said gratefully. "I can't tell you how grateful I am to you for approving of me."

Gay said excitedly: "You must ask her tonight! This would be a good psychological moment. I'm leaving right after the broadcast so you two can be alone."

"Oh, you mustn't do that!" Curt protested. "We'll all go out and celebrate together."

"We'll do nothing of the kind," Gay shook her head swiftly. "You get April into some nice quiet, romantic place with soft lights and music and speak your piece. Tonight."

When April had finished singing, Gay shook hands with Curt De Witt hurriedly and grinned.

"Tell April I've gone home with a headache. And that I think she was marvelous. If I wait to congratulate her, she'll make me go along."

Before Curt could stop her she was gone. Everyone in the studio crowded around April to congratulate her, and Curt went downstairs and waited on the edge of the crowd. When she joined him her cheeks were pink from the praise heaped upon her.

"Mr. Jones says it was all right," Her eyes sparkled with excitement. "He says all there is to do now is to wait and see how the fan mail comes in. Isn't that awful? Suppose no one writes."

Curt smiled. "I'll write you a fan letter, Miss Lind. You are now my favorite singer."

April was singing as April Lind, because she felt she did not want to capitalize on Hill's well-known name, now that she was no longer his wife.

In a charming little restaurant overlooking the East river a little later Curt and April drank champagne and listened to a small string orchestra play old Viennese melodies. April was very beautiful in the soft lights, with her wide gray eyes, and excitement burning in her cheeks.

Curt De Witt leaned toward her suddenly and said very low, "I love you."

April was startled. She thought she must have misunderstood.

"What did you say?" her eyes opened wider.

"I love you," he said again.

April was taken completely by surprise. Her eyes lost their sparkle and she said unhappily: "I'm sorry."

Curt said tensely. "Sorry? Why should you be sorry dear?"

"I had hoped you wouldn't really fall in love with me. That you were just fond of me, and enjoyed going places—she looked away.

Curt's warm brown eyes searched her face closely. "Do you like me a little, April? Just a little?"

She reached over and took his hand that lay so tensely on the table beside her.

"Oh, Curt," she smiled through tears, "of course I'm fond of you. You're an angel."

He held her hand tightly, leaning closer. "Will you marry me?"

April withdrew her hand and sat back almost as if he had struck her.

"Marry you?" she whitened.

"Oh, Curt, please don't let's talk about marriage. I—I've been through one marriage. I couldn't bear it again."

Curt winced at the look in her eyes. He tried to smile. He said gently:

"But darling, this would be so different. I want to take care of you. I don't want you to ever have to worry about anything. I want to be a good father to your child. My little daughter needs a mother like you. It could be so wonderful. Won't you think it over? Don't say no right now, April. Give me a chance to prove myself."

April said quickly: "You don't have to prove yourself, darling. It's just that I've nothing to offer. I can never love again. You're too fine a person to cheat."

Curt broke in gently. "I'll take a chance on winning your love. I'd be so good to you, April. I'd live my whole life for you. I'd give you anything in the world that money can buy if you'll be my wife."

April couldn't bear the longing in Curt De Witt's eyes. So she said, with a look of affection that made him hope:

"I'll try to make myself feel differently about marrying again, Curt. But I won't marry you unless I'm sure of myself. I don't care how much money you have. You know that. I'm terribly fond of you. Some of these days—perhaps I'll feel differently about love. I hope so."

Curt's lean, strong face broke into a smile.

"That's better," he sighed. "At least you're going to give me a chance. That's much more than I had hoped for."

A little later April said: "I'm more tired than I realized after all the excitement. Do you mind if we go now?"

Curt said contritely: "Of course you're tired, darling. I'm selfish, keeping you up so late. We'll go at once."

In the car going home, Curt moved closely to April and when he put his arms around her she made no effort to pull away because she did not want to hurt his feelings. She knew how deeply he loved her, and was more than grateful that he had made no effort to make love to her in a physical way.

But suddenly Curt moved his head and sought her lips, and April closed her eyes and let him kiss her long and hungrily. As Curt held her close kissing her face and her hair and her soft warm throat April wished desperately that she loved him as he wanted to be loved.

At least, she discovered to her surprise, she enjoyed his kisses a lot more than she had expected. Perhaps she was a little more fond of him than she realized. Or was this just because she was so lonely, and because of her great need to be loved?

Could love really come to her again?

Gay was waiting up for April when she got home, lying on the divan reading. She had been too excited and curious to go to bed.

April said, surprised: "What on earth are you doing up at this ungodly hour? It's 2 o'clock. Do you really have a headache?"

"Sure," Gay grinned. "But I'm all over it now."

She searched April's face for a sign of what her answer to Curt De Witt had been, but could read nothing from April's expression.

Suddenly April said: "Curt asked me to marry him tonight, Gay."

Gay sat up swiftly. "Yes! You told him yes, of course."

April sighed, dropping her evening wrap and sitting down in the big chair near her old friend.

"No I didn't say yes. Naturally I wouldn't do that."

Gay looked disappointed. "Surely you didn't turn a man like Curt De Witt down! April, you're crazy."

"But why should I say I'll marry him when the very thought of marrying turns my blood cold. You know what I've been through."

Gay said impatiently: "Don't dramatize things! Just because you married an immature boy the first time, and had to break it up because you couldn't be the man of the family any longer, why should you think you couldn't make a go of it with a man who could give you anything in the world?"

"There's more to marriage," April said seriously, "than material security."

SMITTY

Baering Down on the News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

A lady objected to my line, "Politics makes strange bedfellows and some of them crawl up the posts."

Well, lady, I know it reminded you of poor housekeeping. But I only write of what I see or experience at some time. And I've seen them crawl up the posts.

Whether they were politicians or not, I didn't wait to see. When you have been in the newspaper profession for many years you are going to get all the similes you need first-hand.

I had two ways of writing that line. The alternative was, "Politics make strange bedfellows and some of them drop off the ceiling."

Either way I guess the lady would object to it. But either way it describes politics to a T and crosses it.

DEFENSE BOND

QUIZ

Q Who said: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country?"

A Nathan Hale, who gave his life for America, like great numbers of his fellow countrymen. We are only asked to lend our dollars for Defense Bonds and Stamps to defend the liberty for which they died.

Q To what very large group of Americans does the government look particularly for extensive buying of Defense Bonds and Stamps?

A People in the middle and lower income brackets, where many of the most rapid increases in national earnings are taking place. This immense part of our population can be especially effective in reducing national purchasing power by buying Bonds and Stamps, thus aiding the country's defense program, while helping to keep down the cost of living.

NOTE—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps are now on sale at most retail stores.

'Meet Mr. Meek' Also Back: Ginny Simms Leaves Kay.

By PAUL JONES.

Big Town, booming mythical metropolis of the radiowaves returns tonight with its two most famous citizens, Steve Wilson and Loreli Kilbourne, putting out another edition of the "Illustrated Press."

With the familiar chant "Wuxtra, Wuxtra," Edward G. Robinson and Ona Munson treat listeners to an adaptation of Henry Mead Williams' short story, "The Barrier." The program will be a product of the Columbia network and WGST will handle locally at 8 p. m.

"The Barrier" tells the life story of a youth who defies the town's citizenry who plead for him to open the dam so that they might water their sun-baked fields.

Loreli and her father are aligned against Steve. Steve learns a lesson which helps to shape his future life.

Another program of equal caliber, "Meet Mr. Meek," starring the soft-spoken, shy Mortimer and his talkative wife, Agatha, will find a place on the network to-night at 7:30 over CBS and WGST.

Another of the interesting complete stories in the life of the lovable hen-pecked husband will be related. The cast will be the same as the one which appeared on past programs. Louie, Peggy, Mr. Apple, Mr. Barber and all the other favorite characters will be back.

Ginny Simmy, pretty vocalist with Kay Kyser's band—often rumored the wife of the popular maestro—will say goodbye to the College of Musical Knowledge to-night during the broadcast to be heard over NBC-Red and WSB at 10 o'clock. This will mark Kay's final broadcast from Hollywood and he and the band will journey east.

A successor for Ginny has not yet been named, although Kay has listened to more than 200 auditions.

Burgess Meredith will satirize his latest music success in a sketch, "Tom, Dick and Harry von Zell," when he is guest of Eddie Cantor's Time to Smile program over the NBC-Red network and WSB tonight at 8 o'clock.

Eddie will roll his eyes over time in the role of the girl who wanted three husbands or none, played by Ginger Rogers on the screen. Harry von Zell will attempt the part of Harry von Zell while Bert "Mad Russian" Gordon steals the show as the face on the cutting room floor.

Dinah Shore will fill in and out of the skits besides being featured in a popular song accompanied by the orchestra and chorus conducted by Edgar "Cookie" Fairchild, whose comedy bit also has been made a regular part of the show.

1942 Chryslers Have Numerous New Features

31 Body Styles in Six Models Offered This Year.

New 1942 Chrysler motor cars show improvement in performance, appearance, economy and longevity, and are influenced in design by the car of the future, "The Thunderbolt," Chrysler officials announced yesterday.

More than 6,500,000 saw the "Thunderbolt" with its aerodynamic lines and gave it approval. New models have inherited much of its individuality and "personality," officials declared.

The modernistic effect is especially noticeable in the front-end treatment of the new line. While the 1942 Chryslers have the same wheelbase length as last year, the models have been made wider for "more elbow room," it was said.

There are 31 body styles in the six models offered this year—models including the Royal, the Windsor, the Saratoga, the New Yorker, the Crown Imperial, and the Town and Country (station wagon).

They are offered in a choice of 12 plain colors and seven-tone combinations, and many of these colors are new for the 1942 cars, it was said.

A special decorative effect has been obtained in the tires for all models except the Royal, by the use of a white ring around each tire, in lieu of white sidewall tires. The front fenders of Chryslers have been redesigned to produce a "cleaner flowing surface" between them and the hood, which is a touch from the "Thunderbolt."

New bumpers, stronger and wider, have been designed to protect the cars against a wide range of variously mounted bumpers on other cars, and the bumpers are designed so as not to interfere with air intake. Horsepower has been increased in both the six and eight-cylinder models, in the sixes by increased engine displacement and in the eights by refinements of design.

U. S. Mediation Must Be Used, F. D. R. Warns

Tells AFL Labor Peace Would Be Patriotic Step.

SEATTLE, Oct. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, in a message today to the American Federation of Labor, said the time has come when federal machinery for adjusting labor disputes "must be used" by labor and management "before any recourse is taken to a strike or lockout."

In the interests of national defense, the President said that the establishment of peace between labor organizations would be a patriotic step toward the creation of true national unity.

Speaking on the same significant theme, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins told the 600 AFL convention delegates and a throng of visitors that "strikes which hamper the national effort have inevitably brought an avalanche of unfavorable comment to the labor movement."

President Roosevelt's message said that "the threat of Hitlerism is directed not only at labor . . . it is aimed at all of us—every man, woman and child—who believes in freedom."

William Green, president of the AFL, arose at the conclusion of the message and said:

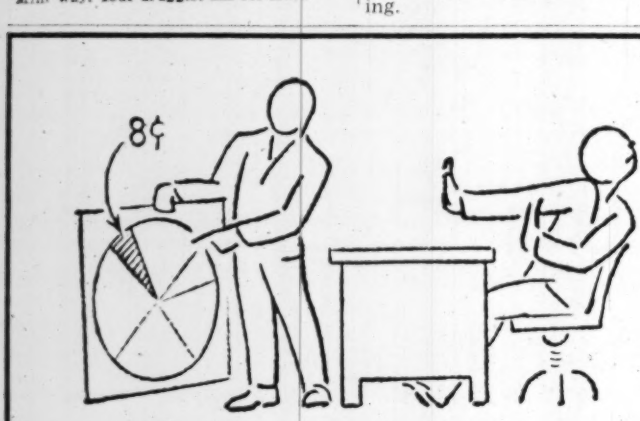

"We certainly welcome the counsel and advice in this message."

Governor Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, drew cheers with his statement that President Green should be one of those seated at the peace conference table after the war.

"The soundest possible base for our future government," he said, "would be to have post-war construction projects and labor on a private, not a government base."

WOMEN MAN POLLS—They had a man-sized man election out in East Point yesterday—but the women ran it. Here are two of the female election managers, Mrs. Will S. Cox (left) and Mrs. E. L. Moore, at the third ward polling place, where incumbent Councilman J. Henry Blair went to cast his vote for himself. H. D. Bradley opposed Blair. Five women and one man served as election managers in the balloting.

Blair, Eidson Board Reopens Are Re-elected 'Captive' Mine In East Point Dispute Probe

Sims Gets Plurality in 3-Man Race But May Face Run-Over.

J. Henry Blair and J. Paul Eidson were re-elected to their East Point city council posts yesterday, and a third incumbent, Ernest A. Sims, received a plurality vote in the first ward, but may face a run-over.

C. D. Stewart, East Point attorney, was runnerup in the first ward, polling 119 votes to 203 for Sims. P. H. "Pat" Orr came third, with 99 votes.

Eidson, unopposed candidate in the second ward, received 75 votes.

Blair won in the third ward from H. D. Bradley, 278 to 28. Walter Harclerode, chairman of the Democratic executive committee for the primary, said Stewart had declared he was undecided whether to seek a run-over. If a run-over is held, Harclerode added, it will be in the next 10 days.

There were 803 votes cast in the election out of 1,897 persons on the eligible list.

Fire School Course Is Held at Athens

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 7.—Fifty firemen from various northeast Georgia departments Saturday completed a two-day fire school course here which was featured by training in chemical warfare by Captain J. L. Ivey, of the Atlanta fire department.

M. H. Carter, of Atlanta, director of the Georgia State Fire College, was among those attending. In addition to chemical warfare with emphasis on incendiary bombs, courses were given in fire prevention, first aid, ladder work and life-saving and in engineering.

Chinese Seize Western Outpost of Japanese

SHANGHAI, Oct. 8.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—The Japanese today admitted Chinese recapture of Ichang, westernmost outpost of the Japanese in China, but said a Japanese counterattack in progress in that area of western Hupeh province since Saturday had repelled eight Chinese divisions near Shasi on the Yangtze river.

A Chungking spokesman said Chinese forces entered Ichang Tuesday morning and were fighting the Japanese in the streets, climaxing an offensive which began simultaneously with the Japanese drive in Hunan province last month.

Ford Reduces Lay-Off Total, Union Says

DETROIT, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Representatives of the United Automobile Workers' Union (CIO) and the Ford Motor Company got together again today and agreed, according to a union statement, that, instead of 20,000, only about 5,400 workers would have to be laid off because of the government ordered curtailment of passenger car production.

George F. Addes, national defense labor co-ordinator for the UAW-CIO, said 3,000 of those to be laid off would be probationary production workers and 2,400 would be nonproduction men over whom the union has no jurisdiction. He said they, too, would be probationary workers whom he defined as employees of less than six months' standing with no established seniority rights.

"The company and the union," Addes said, "agreed that the balance of the present working force can be used for the production quotas allowed by the Office of Production Management through to the end of November."

The Ford company has been allocated a production total from August through November of 151,945 passenger units by the OPM. This compares with 182,800 in the like four months last year. As in the case of other companies, however, a heavy slash has been ordered for December. Ford allotments for December total 38,008 passenger vehicles for civilian uses compared with 78,309 in the same month last year. The Ford company has had approximately 80,000 production workers on the River Rouge pay rolls.

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, in his remarks yesterday, said the rate of production at the Rouge factory had been sharply cut by almost daily work stoppages and slow-downs that began soon after the signing of the agreement with the UAW-CIO last June and continued until quite recently.

He said he had no comment today on the Addes statement.
